Something burning

Romulus Fire Chief John Wilhide (right) and DDA's Fire Chief Robert Hocking discuss a cooperative firefighter's training program hosted by Detroit Diesel Allison's Romulus plant while a fireman extinguishes a fire in the background. DDA's Volunteer Fire Brigade invited the Romulus firefighters to join them in a unique "hands on" training program where six different fires were set (outside, on DDA property), and all participants allowed to extinguish them. The fires were typical of the kind that might occur in the Romulus plant and included an oil pan, barrel and trough, a paint shelf and table, and a large rack of wood and cardboard boxes. The experience was mutually beneficial since the Romulus firefighters were able to assist DAA's people in becoming familiar with using water hoses on wood and paper fires, while DAA was able to provide them with first-hand experience in fighting oil and liquid fires with chemical extinguishers. DAA has about 140 members in its Volunteer Fire Brigade at Romulus who would assist the fire department as needed in case of an in-plant fire.

Food for thought

Co-op to offer food package

No one who has visited a supermarket or grocery store has to be reminded the never-ending rise in the cost for food. It seems that prices to up and up and up.

However, consumers in Romulus, Belleville and the surrounding communities will have a unique opportunity this week to take part in a cooperative food plan that will help defray the cost of their food bill.

The program initiated by the New Food Cooperative, has been very successful in the downriver areas, according to Fred Taylor, and it is presently being organized at Walter's Recreation, 37452 Huron River Drive, Romulus, at Five Points.

"We feel that with the cost of food at what it is," said Taylor, "this is a real bargain. The co-op philosophy helps keep the cost down because we eliminate a lot of the frills."

Reminded that many con artists have tried to perpetuate fraud on senior citizens in the area, Taylor replied that this program is sponsored by the Taylor Moose. "We presently have stores operating in the communities of Taylor, Lincoln Park and Melvindale."

The co-op would work the following way, according to Gene Pereck, proprietor of Walt's Recreation. Persons who are interested would sign up Monday through Saturday from 10:30 a.m. until 6:30 p.m. They will be able to purchase two bags of groceries for $10.

A typical order would consist of fresh produce, fruits, eggs, fresh baked breads. There is fresh meat and cheese available, but at an additional cost.

"The co-op idea is geared to help persons on limited and fixed incomes to deal with the rising costs of inflation," Taylor said.

There are no residential restrictions to participate in the program. Those interested may receive further information by telephoning Walter's at 941-7640.

The Romulus Community Schools continued to struggle with their financial problems last Monday evening.

The Board adopted a preliminary 1981-82 budget through a series of complicated resolutions designed, as Superintendent William Bedell said, "To keep the Board as legal as possible in a very difficult situation."

Bedell pointed out to the Board that there are several state laws that are in conflict that cause school districts to have problems with budget adoptions this year.

After the preliminary budget approval, the board reviewed proposals from Bedell on the best approach to deal

Budget battle brewing

Although most public hearings on the city proposed budget are perfunctory in manner, there appears to be a battle brewing over anticipated salary and wage hikes offered in budget amendments by Mayor William Oakley.

The public was to get a glimpse at and the Council was to debate the mayor's proposed budget last night at a public hearing.

The council, by law, must adopt the budget before the new fiscal year, July 1.

The Mayor has proposed at least three salary increases to department heads that Councilman Ed Rush has "grave concerns over."

Although the councilmen have droned over much of the items listed in the proposed budget, Rush says that the budget amendments raise some questions.

"I have grave concerns over the items in this proposed budget," Rush said, "but I also realize the underlining responsibility under the uniform budgeting act to adopt a balanced budget by July 1."

Specifically, Rush pointed out, "that during budget workshops all of us had agreed upon the non-union salaries for the coming fiscal year."

"However, at last Tuesday's council meeting," Rush continued, "the mayor brought back three additional increases which first of all caught me personally by surprise because I felt we had, that is, council had, approved the salary scale."

"These proposed increases are excessive in light of the current dissatisfaction of costs of government, the inability of the mayor to settle the union contract and trying to hold a line on operating costs."

Bedell, though the mayor recommended a mill increase on May 22, Rush said.

Rush concluded by saying that he found it unfortunate that "the mayor wants to budget certain personalities rather than budgeting the position."

In a memorandum to council members dated June 23, 1981, Mayor Oakley asked that body to reconsider three categories of the employee wage scale.

"As members of the Council," Mayor Oakley stated in the memorandum,

"you are aware of the many responsibilities that goes along with the different jobs and the many sacrifices that are made."

"The Community Grants Developer, Department of Public Works, Director and the Legislative Secretary/Administrative receptionist...and, after review ing each ones great responsibility to the people of this city and the amount of time and dedication that they give themselves along with the employees, I respectfully ask that Council compensate the following: Community Grants Developer — $28,000; Department of Public Works — $25,000; and Legislative Secretary — $15,500."

First aid anyone?

Knowing how to administer first aid is a sometime life-or-death situation and 35 area people took an opportunity provided by the American Red Cross to learn the fundamentals. Above instructor Fred Clement (at right) shows Mayor William Oakley one of the Advance First Aid Cards presented by the Red Cross to the residents while Bill Meyers (at left), of the Emergency Network, looks on. The class was also comprised of 12 members of the Emergency Network, and firefighters from neighboring Plymouth Township, Woodhaven and Brownstown. All classes were conducted at Romulus Fire Station No. 4, except the class on water rescue which was held at the Ramada Inn pool. Fred Clement, Judy Clement, Don Brestow and John Lewis attended the nine-week classes.

Members of the Wayne County Sheriff's Road Patrol Divisions motorcycle detail are on the road these days, thanks to the help of gas station owner Gary Tinkle. Tinkle second from (right) operates the Amoco Service Station at Haggerty Road and Ford Road in Canton Township, and has been supplying gasoline for the motorcycles, at no charge. A dispute between missionaries has kept the Road Patrol's future in doubt, and recently it was forced to vacate permanent quarters on Hix Road in Westland. Lucas, however, moved much of that detail left after officers sent downtown to work at the county Jail to his ministration in Hines Park to set up housekeeping. Gassing up last week were Deputies Jerry Lindsey (from left), Robert Lambka and Ed Rasmussen. — ANP PHOTO.

Schools fears fiscal disaster with the financial crunch for the coming year.

Bedell began by indicating the Board had already made extensive reductions in most of the budget areas. He distributed documents showing that since 1979-80, the administrative staff had been cut 10 percent and the teaching staff had been reduced some 75 positions.

In addition, there had been 14 bus drivers laid off and several other reductions in the non-instructional areas.

Despite these reductions, Bedell's figures indicated the district still faces a shortfall, which according to Bedell, will require additional millage or future budget reductions.

Bedell's number indicated an equity problem at the end of the next year (June 30, 1982) of between $2 Million and $2.5 Million depending on several factors such as final state, county and federal revenue; the effect of spending controls; and the amount of state aid note the district is permitted to re-borrow.

Bedell offered a series of possibilities for correction of the problem which contained three steps as follows:

Step 1 - Implement the reductions listed on the attached sheet which have not been done already. Those items with an asterisk have been done.

Step 2 - Vote added millage on September 14 or November 3. Several possibilities have been suggested:

A — Vote 4.5 mills for one year again.

B — Vote 6.25 mills for one year longer.

C — Vote 3.5 mills for one year and 2.75 mills for longer either as a single issue or two separate issues.

Step 3 - If the millage passes, use the 3.5 mills to retire debt and the 2.75 mills to restore cuts on a priority basis. Begin by replacing all of sub-total 1 from the reduction sheet and replace other items

HEALTH and FAMILY PROTECTION... go together

KEEP THAT Healthy Happy Feeling

Health and protection are two great thoughts to consider for your loved ones and yourself. You want to give your family complete protection from harm and to do everything in your power to keep them healthy and happy.

Today, we are living in a fast moving, strenuous, nerve racking age, where everyone is trying to get ahead faster than his neighbor, yet we are prone to forget that to keep up with this mad pace we must keep our vital nerve energy flowing freely to stay in the best physical condition.

Our everyday activities depend entirely on the brain power transmitted through our vast nervous system to coordinate and propel our every movement. Automatically all strength, all activity and security comes directly from the spine.

The nervous system consists of the brain, the spinal cord which is housed and supported by the spinal column.

"I had to make my beds on my hands and knees"

I read about chiropractic in the newspapers. I was in pain. My husband said I should give it a try, but I was afraid.

Well my condition finally forced me to seek help. I decided I had suffered long.

Beverly Bailly

When I first came to Dr. Grassam I had hurt my back. I could hardly crawl up on the table.

I had to make my beds on my hands and knees.

Within one week I was doing all of the things I had been doing previously.

Now if I have a problem I go straight to Dr. Grassam and within days I am feeling much better.

I am happy to recommend chiropractic to everyone I meet who is in pain.

The Doctor Helped Me and My Baby!

When I was nearly nine months pregnant, my family doctor diagnosed me as having "bell's palsy." He sent me to a neurologist who confirmed his diagnosis and said electric shock treatments would cost me $55 each visit.

My doctor would not give me cortisone because I was planning to nurse my baby. About a week after the baby was born, a friend whose brother had benefited from chiropractic adjustments from Dr. Grassam suggested I visit the doctor.

Wracked with pain, suffering from a nervous twitch and without a good night's sleep in years, I visited Dr. Grassam. After the first treatment, my hands relaxed, my neck felt loose and my looks improved as the feeling returned to my mouth and eye muscles.

Learning of the "Family Plan," my husband Gary and our four children have come together for monthly visits. My baby, who was born during the time I had "bell's palsy," had unusual "blueing" at two weeks old.

Doctors ran all kinds of tests, but found nothing wrong. Dr. Grassam gently tapped spots on her neck, her "blueing" went away and she has been a wonderful, healthy baby.

I nursed her until she was one year old. We all feel better, have better health and definitely tell everyone about chiropractic!

Sponsored by Rotary

2 Romulus youths to attend Wolverine Boys State

Two Romulus High School juniors, Robert Bales and John Easley, have just returned from eight days of intensive activity at the forty-fourth annual American Legion Wolverine Boys' State held on the campus of Michigan State University in East Lansing.

The boys, sponsored by the Romulus Rotary Club, has to demonstrate leadership ability and an awareness of government and pass an oral interview by school counselors and staff to be eligible to participate. This is the first time the Rotary Club has sponsored two students, in scholarships worth $260. As soon as each participant reached

Michigan State, they were assigned to a city and to one of two fictional political parties. They then had the option to run for political office, in one of the three branches of government, judicial, legislative or executive.

The week progressed with a wide variety of activities, including: campaigning, athletic events, music groups and publishing a daily newspaper and culminated in a political convention and election at the end of the week.

Two boys are subsequently selected from each state to attend Boys' Nation, held at American University in Washington, D.C. from July 17-25, 1981.

Robert Bales, son of Daniel and Carol Bales, 15446 Anthony, has attended Romulus Public Schools since kindergarten and has managed to maintain an "A" average since entering high school. He is employed at Ted's IGA as a stock boy and has also been active in school activities including the National Honor Society, Class Council and Student Council.

He hopes to attend the University of Michigan's Law School upon graduation from high school.

John Michael Easley, son of John and Lucille Easley, 38162 Walnut, is also an active student leader, having served as president of the National Honor Society this year.

He was also active in Junior Achievement, being voted the "Best Businessman" Award and was a member of the Romulus Business Occupations Education Club. He was a finalist in regional competition in computer programming this year.

He hopes to attend the University of Michigan upon graduation from high school and study for medical school.

John Domas, a counselor at South Junior High School and Rotary Club member, was largely responsible for nominating the two boys and securing Rotary Club sponsorship.

on a priority basis for second semester. We could consider:

- Return to some form of 6 hour day - 2nd Semester;
- Return some art, music, physical education programs in 2nd semester, he said, and replace other programs as available.

The reductions Bedell listed on his sheet for Board consideration were in two parts. One list totalled $551,575 and appeared to be items that were going to be done whether millage was approved or not.

It included such things as a 25 percent decrease in business expense, a reduction of one-third of the inservice, elimination of attendance officer and a central office administrator and several other adjustments.

The major list referred by Bedell as sub-total No. 1 totalled some $797,822 and would be implemented if millage were not obtained by the fall. These cuts would call for closing two elementary schools as soon as possible; canceling secondary building libraries; eliminating approximately one-half of the counseling staff; cutting all athletics; and elimination of all extra curricular activities, including such things as field trips, yearbook, class sponsors, etc.

In addition, another administrative position would be eliminated as well as cuts of 20 to 50 percent in business expense, capital outlay and instructional supplies.

The Alternative Education Program would be abandoned, school nurse eliminated, two security guards laid off and a number of other adjustments.

"Even with this type of massive cutting, the district would still face a deficit," Bedell pointed out. "How large a deficit would depend on the final revenue/expenditure numbers and some of the other factors we mentioned previously."

"We may have to cut even further. The fact of the matter, without additional revenues of some kind, the district will have a 'bare bones' problem," he added.

Madonna conducts info day

How students can earn up to $500 off their tuition by attending a Michigan independent college is just one of the many topics to be explored during College Information Day on June 28 at Madonna College in Livonia.

The Sunday affair is scheduled between 2 and 4 p.m., in the Activities Center on campus, located on Schoolcraft (I-96) and Levan in Livonia.

High school students, parents, community members, and older adults are welcome to attend to meet faculty, interact with counselors, tour the campus, and learn more about the Michigan Differential Grant.

Undergraduates qualify for the grant based on full- or part-time enrollment at an independent college, regardless of financial need. Full-time students are awarded $500, while part-time students receive $250.

For more information contact the admissions office at 591-5052.

Nice going

'Too much vandalism'

Belleville cancels 4th of July fireworks

Vandals, rowdiness and plain-old street fights have taken the fireworks out of Belleville 4th of July celebrations this year, according to the Belleville Police Department.

There will be no firework display, which had been sponsored in the past by the Belleville-Van Buren Chamber of Commerce, but recently put on by the Belleville Jaycees.

"We've run into a whole mess of problems with this," said Sgt. Will Dockter, "and it's really gotten out of hand. Each year it seems to accelerate and we appear to receive more and more complaints with it and problems."

Started over two decades ago, the annual Belleville 4th of July celebration and fireworks was a "community-oriented festivity," noted Leona VanBuhler, of the Belleville-Van Buren Chamber of Commerce.

"We had parades and then the fireworks and everything seemed to go well," Mrs. VanBuhler said. "The program was sponsored at one time by the Chamber of Commerce, then the Jaycees took it over and it has been a very successful affair."

"However, our residents apparently have had a rash of problems with this," Sgt. Dockter said. He pointed out that the festivities also "became a health hazard."

"If we needed to get a police car, a fire engine or an ambulance through that area, we couldn't do it. It's gotten completely out of hand."

The fireworks are launched from what has become known as "Fireworks Island," an island in Belleville Lake, just opposite of High Street. A lot of residents in the area complain that the sightseers and people who gather to view the display cause property damage, break windows, and dig up lawns.

After last year's celebration, members of the community appeared before City Council and pleaded with it to cancel the program.

"You know we feel that most of the trouble was caused by people from out of town," said Sgt. Dockter. "There are no familiar faces — just people from the surrounding area and it turns out we have a lot of fights and property damage. Our people in the city really weren't benefiting from it anymore."

Commissioners refuse to pay bill

Sheriffs chalk up $100,000 per week in overtime costs

Pointing to unauthorized overtime costs in the Sheriff's department continuing at $100,000 per week, the Wayne County Board of Commissioners has ordered its legal staff to seek court action forcing a $500,000 personal bond from Sheriff William Lucas, and to also explore the technical requirements needed to remove him from office.

The move came from the commissioners during a Ways and Means committee meeting on June 25 when considering still another request from the Sheriff for payment of overtime.

In addition, the committee, which consists of all 27 members of the Board, approved a directive to the Sheriff to "stop spending non-appropriated funds for overtime and to live within the budget as appropriated."

Lucas has been spending beyond his budget since Feb. 1, trying to maintain all services as usual although the Board eliminated and ceased funding of the Patrol and Investigation unit effective that date. Since then, he has ordered extensive overtime to compensate for the absence of laid-off deputies.

As early as mid-March Lucas was ordered to post the bond, but did not comply. For failure to post the bond, according to state statute, he could be removed from office by two-thirds vote of the Board, but even the chief proponents for his dismissal admit lack of enough support for now.

That lack of support, in part, also moved the committee to approve transmittal of reports of the Sheriff's overtime expenditures to the State Attorney General and Treasurer for review and appropriate action if violations of state statutes are indicated.

Said James J. Rashid, Chairman of the special subcommittee investigating the Sheriff's activities who submitted the proposal for consideration in Lansing:

"I don't think we have the 18 votes required to remove the Sheriff from office, but somehow we must get off dead-center. We need third-party involvement to try and recoup some of this wasted money for the county and its taxpayers."

Rashid is also the first to ask for a bond from Lucas, and among the leaders wanting him ousted from office, although it was Vice-Chairman Clemens

E. Bykowski who formally proposed the idea at the committee meeting.

"The Sheriff has had sufficient timely notice to post the bond and he has not," said Bykowski. "He has had about nine weeks to comply and apparently does not intend doing so. He should be removed."

Throughout the time since the Board ordered elimination of the Sheriff's road patrol, Lucas has insisted he has statutory duty to maintain all existing staff. Besides numerous court confrontations already, from the Sheriff, the County Board, and deputies, Lucas will claim in court beginning the week of June 29 that he was lacking sufficient personnel even before the layoffs he ignored were ordered.

Noting Lucas' claims under statue,

Rashid said, "We too have obligation to maintain our own duties. Now it is time we acted one way or the other. We're acting with the law, which is more than I can say for the Sheriff."

Rashid said he was against another public hearing on the Sheriff's dispute, as proposed by Commissioner Arthur M. Carter while urging caution among the others before careful research. "We've already subpoenaed the Sheriff for a public meeting, providing the opportunity for a public hearing, and it was on the basis of this that we requested the bond," said Rashid.

In calling for the public hearing, to which "everyone in the County should be invited," Carter said, "I'm opposed at this time and place. This is much too serious an action to be taken lightly and deserves more deliberation.

"I'm not necessarily convinced that the Sheriff should not be removed, but now is not the time. We should not act hastily and make decisions which we might have to overturn tomorrow."

Commissioner Richard E. Manning, also favoring dismissal of Lucas, agreed with Carter. Making the motion to refer the matter to the legal staff, he said, "We need to know the proper procedures, the right system to remove him from office." He continued:

"We must be aware of the exact level of misfeasance or malfeasance or nonfeasance, otherwise we'll wind up in court long enough for the original issues to be forgotten."

"I'm against another public hearing because we're not conducting a trial."

Boat mishap fatal to Dearborn Heights man

23-year-old drowns in Belleville Lake

Cutbacks in the Wayne County Sheriff's Department have prompted quick reaction from area cities, including claims that a man who drowned last week may have been saved had the department been at full force.

The body of Larry Lach, 23, of Dearborn Heights, was recovered from Belleville Lake last Thursday by the Wayne County water and search division along with Oakland County sheriff's divers. Lach had fallen from a speedboat at approximately 7 p.m. on June 22 leading to a three-day search of the waters, according to Wayne County Lt. Paul Benyo.

Lach had been in a speedboat with three friends and was seated on the engine casing when he fell, Benyo reported. The friends were looking at a docked boat ahead at the time of the mishap, he added.

Benyo said the friends circled the area for 15 minutes and flagged down passing boats for help upon discovering Lach's disappearance.

Although Van Buren police arrived shortly after the accident, sheriff's divers, who were off duty and had to be called in, did not arrive until 8:30 p.m., a sheriff's department spokesman admitted.

Had rescuers reached Lach within an hour, he could have been revived, Benyo speculated. A department spokesman said that a drowning victim can be revived if the water is cold enough citing the findings of medical authorities. The Belleville Lake temperature was about 62 degrees at the time of the accident, he reported.

Budget cutbacks ordered by county officials earlier this year had reduced the number of sheriff's divers on summer duty from seven to two. Aiding the two Wayne County divers during the search were divers from the Washtenaw County sheriff's department, the Michigan State Police and the Oakland County sheriff's force, said Benyo.

Adolph Lach of Detroit, the victim's father who had been at the scene, angrily blamed department budget cuts and the resulting lack of emergency manpower for the slow recovery.

Alan Lach, 20, the victim's brother, added that the department's financial situation had been frustrating for the family during the three-day hunt. Lach, along with his sister, Marg Haver, 29, had remained by the shore for the entire recovery period until the body was discovered.

The victim was married to Rosanne Lach, 22, and was employed by the General Motors diesel plant in Romulus. He had no children.

According to Lt. Benyo, a fully-staffed sheriff's department would have included a water safety officer on the lake at the time of the mishap. Presumably the officer would have cautioned Lach to sit in his seat rather than on the boat's engine casing, the lieutenant said.

Covering up for the strain caused by county budget slashes has become an everyday occurrence in Belleville, Van Buren, Sumpter and Canton Townships. Especially troubling for these communities has been the problem created by the disbanding of the Wayne County Road Patrol.

Sumpter and Van Buren, which lack funds and personnel for 24-hour patrols, had been relying on Wayne County officers while Belleville and Canton Township had called on the sheriff's department on occasion for assistance even though they field full-time forces.

Due to a lack of monies to pay for full-time personnel, police officials in Sumpter and Van Buren admit that keeping these communities protected has proven to be a troublesome assignment. Both townships have been seeking help from Belleville and the state police for night-time aide.

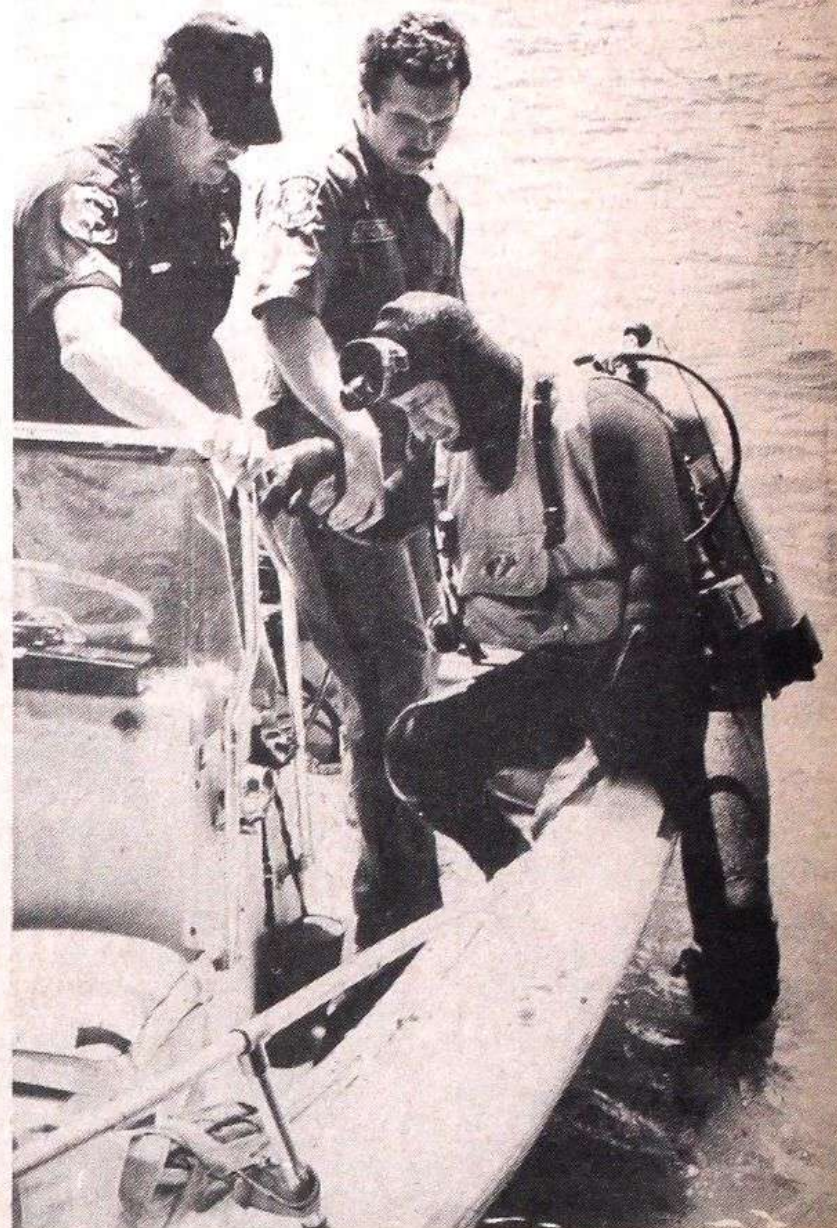

In an effort to beef up patrols, both Sumpter and Van Buren are exploring ways to generate funds for added protection. The Sumpter board has authorized a trustee to circulate a petition to find out whether local residents want a tax hike to pay for more patrolmen and equipment. A petition seeking a four-mill levy for a full-time department is being circulated in Van Buren with some broad-based support, according to Van Buren Police Chief George Montgomery.

A Belleville police spokesman said that area residents have started complaining about the fact that the city's police cars are often out of town helping out neighboring communities. The Belleville force includes seven full-time officers, including a chief and a sergeant.

Despite Belleville's assistance, some emergency police calls from Sumpter and Van Buren are going unanswered, a Belleville police spokesman reported.

To alleviate the financial burden, Belleville and the townships of Huron, Van Buren, Sumpter and Canton have been planning the formation of a joint dispatching service, to be run out of the Belleville police station. Budgeted at $133,000, the system would be paid for by the member departments.

The purpose of the system would be to cut expenses and dispatch time, Sumpter Police Chief Clinton Brown said. To date the various township boards have voiced support of the program, the chief concluded.

PREVENTING SPORTS INJURIES

No one would think of playing tackle football without wearing shoulder pads and a helmet. Yet, far too many youngsters play contact sports, without wearing protection for their mouths. This results in all too many cases of split lips, broken, chipped and knocked out teeth. For example, fifty-two percent of all football injuries occur in unprotected faces and mouths.

The best way to prevent all this mouth damage, is to wear a mouth protector. Bars across football helmets don't do the same job. They don't protect the teeth and jaws from an upward blow on the chin — only from a blow straight against the face. Dental injuries to football players wearing proper mouth protectors have been almost completely eliminated.

Most old-style mouthguards, such as those we see boxers using, are not very easy to wear because they are bulky. Talking is just about impossible. Many players prefer to talk and be comfortable and risk the chance of injury rather than wear one. However, a modern mouthguard, made to an accurate model of a boy's mouth doesn't interfere with mouth breathing, stays in place when the mouth is opened, allows clear speech and is comfortable.

Witnesses to host circuit minister

The Belleville congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses will host Mr. and Mrs. Vasil Sekela, circuit minister, from the Watchtower Society of New York.

Sekela will address the local congregation during the week of July 7 through July 12 at the Kingdom Hall located at 45 S. Edgemont.

According to Sterling Sewell, local witness elder, Sekela will take the lead in all the activities of the local congregation, giving training in the house-to-house and home Bible study ministries.

Sekela is encouraging the local witnesses to use the topical approach to Bible study when aiding others in this area to understand the Bible more clearly.

Using this method, 22 basic Bible topics are considered over the course of about six months in the privacy of the student's home. Well over a million families and individuals participated in this free home Bible study program last year. The program is available locally, without cost or obligation, by calling 697-8360.

Sekela will also conduct several meetings at the Kingdom Hall throughout the week, starting at 7 p.m. Tuesday, also Thursday 7 p.m. As the highlight of the week's activity, Sunday at 9 a.m. Sekela gives the Bible discourse entitled Encourage One Another as the Day Draws Near. All of these Bible study meetings are free of charge and the public is cordially invited.

The search ends

Lt. Paul Benyo and Al Norris of the State Police (above photo) prepare to push the motor boat out into Belleville lake in quest of the body of Dearborn Heights resident Larry Lach. After three frustrating days, divers were able to locate the drowning victim and retrieved his body from about 15 feet of water. Lach became the first drowning victim of the summer season at the local lake.

Recall gains momentum in Huron

Group hopes to oust Township Clerk Mary Lou Carey

The recall of the Huron Township clerk gained momentum this week as a group of citizens filed a petition for her recall.

James R. Killeen, Wayne County Clerk, acknowledged that a group of Huron Township residents filed petitions on Friday, June 26 to recall Mrs. Mary Lou Carey, township clerk.

The group is seeking to recall Mrs. Carey, according to the petitions filed in the county clerk's office, because: "She has repeatedly shown more concern for

...If there is a sufficient number of valid signatures, we could have a recall election in September...Killeen.

her interest rather than the interests of the township. She had allowed, even encouraged excessive spending of township funds all too little or no benefit for the township residents."

Spearheading the drive are Larry

Davis and Doris Whitney, who have collected 905 signatures on the recall petition.

Killeen said that there appeared to be sufficient numbers of signatures on the petitions to force a vote. He pointed out that 664 valid signatures were required in order to call for an election in the township.

"We're presently checking the signatures out now, and as soon as we determine if there are sufficient numbers (of signatures) then we will go through the procedure to put the election on."

Killeen explained that the county's clerk office has until July 6 to return the petitions back to the township to verify the signatures with the registered voter records.

"The group filed with us on June 26, and we have until July 6 to appoint a clerk to handle this in Huron Township because the clerk is under recall."

"We then have 10 days to determine the sufficiency of the signatures, look and see if there are any glaring errors, any conflicts of dates or that kind of errors."

"Then the petitions go to the township for 10 days for checking against the registered voter records and after that the petitions will return to the county clerk within 15 days."

Killeen stressed that the process should take until July 20 and by July 27, "we will have to make a final determination of the sufficiency and the accuracy of the petitions."

"If we find that all is in order, we will submit proposed election dates to the Election Scheduling Committee, which must be within 35 days of the filing, so we're looking at a recall election on or around Sept. 25," Killeen concluded.

4-H Club redies for 'Big day'

Have you ever had a close encounter with a goat? Had the opportunity to pet a colt or touch the nose of a calf? If not, the place to go for such experiences is the 4-H Pet-A-Farm at the Wayne County Cooperative Extension and Education Center in Wayne.

The pet-a-farm, a first for the center last summer, opened Monday (June 22) through Aug. 7. Funded through United Community Services, the farm will be staffed by veteran pet-a-farmer David Cook, Bruce Sullins and Al McDonald.

Groups of up to 25 persons will be treated to a slide presentation set to music on how to approach an animal, will visit the center's greenhouse and windmill, as well as its gardens and pond stocked with fish, then head for the barn, home for the pet-a-farm.

There will be an opportunity for a close visit with a pony and her colt, a calf, sow and her piglets, sheep, goats, chickens and ducks, and visitors also will be supplied with a fact sheet about the animals they will be meeting.

While the tours are free and open to the public, appointments are necessary and can be made for 10 and 11 a.m. or 1 and 2 p.m. Mondays through Fridays by contacting the center at 721-6576.

The Cooperative Extension and Education Center is located at 5454 Venoy Road, just north on Van Born Road in Wayne.

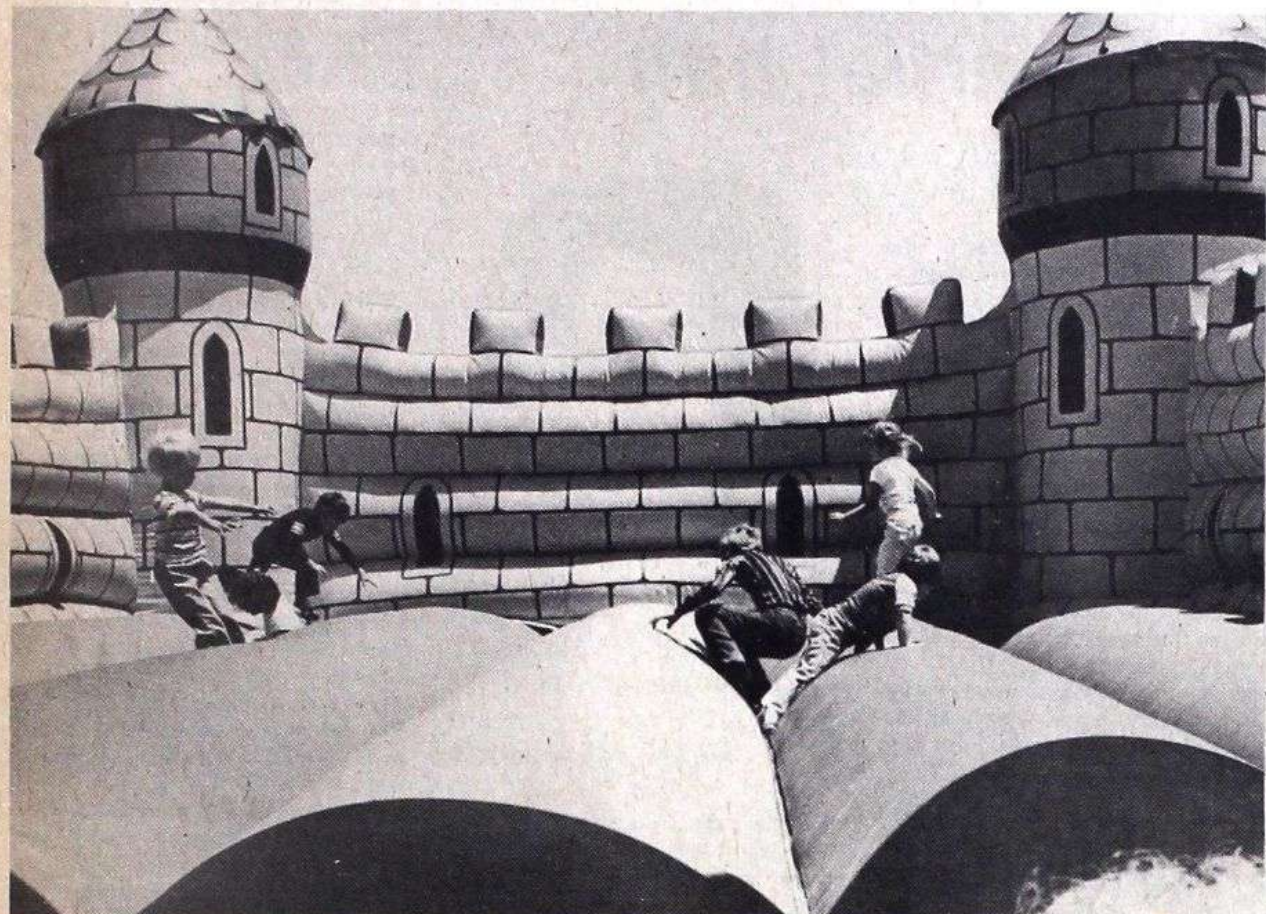

City to host checkers' meet

If you're a checkers enthusiast, you'll be able to see some of the best players in the United States compete in Inkster.

City Council Monday night approved a resolution allowing the American International Checkers Society to use the local Recreation Complex.

The American International Checkers Society will hold its 11th annual national tournament on July 6 through July 11.

Bouncing around

Local tourists find Camelot on 'winterless' New Zealand

"In short there's really not a more congenial spot for happy ever aftering than here, in Camelot."

So end the words of the song about that mystical place where laws govern the climate. Well, that might be hard to match, but there is a place, one you may never have heard of, where it comes pretty close. They call it the "Winterless North."

Strictly speaking "Winterless" is a misnomer; it can become wet and windy during July and August. But it never snows and the daytime temperature is seldom below 55 degrees f. or above 80 degrees f. Adequate rainfall and ample sunshine have together produced a land which is as green as Ireland and as lovely as Southern California, unpolluted by industry of dense population. This is Northland, the narrow peninsula of land which extends for nearly 300 miles

Path to Eagle rank wasn't 'very hard'

Very few Scouts make it all the way to the top, but on June 9 14-year-old Donald Ward did.

Seven years in Scouting, including three years in the Cub Scouts, paved the way for a very special moment for the teen and his parents, who watched as their son became the third Eagle Scout in Boy Scout Troop 860 of Madison Elementary School.

Donald, who will be entering John Glenn High School this fall, is "very happy" with his accomplishment, although he found the so-called path to the Eagle rank "wasn't very hard, but definitely challenging."

He admits that his parents, Albert and Dorothy Ward, provided a nudge here and there when he seemed to slow down in his quest, and his older brother Donald, 18, set the pace. David became Troop 860's second Eagle Scout last October.

He received the Eagle Charge, which elevated him to the highest rank in Boy Scouting from his brother, who told him that he has "become a marked man" and that his "great undertaking goes beyond his fellow Scouts to God and his country."

David also told his brother: "You are here to help make the future great... to live and serve to inspire others."

Donald began his career in Scouting in 1974 with Cub Scout Pack 860. He worked his way up through the ranks, earning his Webelos patch and the Arrow of Light, the highest award in Cub Scouting and the only award that can be carried over to the Boy Scouts, in 1977.

That same year he joined Troop 860 and in his four years of involvement with it has served as an assistant patrol leader, patrol leader, senior patrol leader and member of the Leadership Corps.

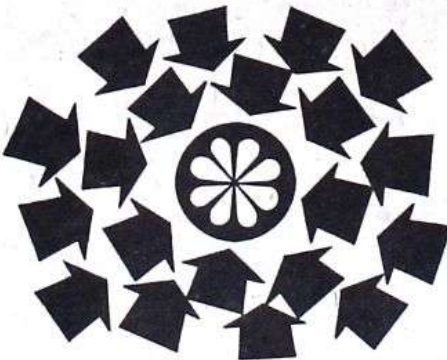

In working for the Eagle rank, David undertook the restoration of three courtyards at Madison School, getting help from fellow Scouts Chris Yanity, Larry Mosier and Tom Kilgore.

While Donald found working on the skills awards and merit badges the best part of earning the Eagle rank, there was one part—20 days camping in a tent

4th of July travel to be up for holidays

A good turnout of holiday vacationers over the Fourth of July weekend should continue Michigan's 6 percent increase in tourism so far this year and help make 1981 the state's second best tourism year ever, according to the Auto mobile Club of Michigan.

"Although inflation, unemployment and lagging car sales still are seriously hindering Michigan's economy, they are having little effect on state tourism as Michiganders travel at a pace second only to record 1978," stated Auto Club Touring Manager Joseph Ratke.

"The only concession travelers are making to their economic circumstances is to take closer-to-home vacations, which is benefiting tourism activity in most sections of the state," Ratke said.

An Auto Club check of regional tourist associations, hotel associations, popular holiday attractions and state and private campgrounds indicates that tourism over the Fourth of July weekend should be up approximately 6 percent over the 1980 holiday.

Weather permitting, the Michigan Department of Transportation predicts motorists in Michigan should drive 725 million miles over the 78-hour holiday, which is 2 percent more than a year ago. The record for a July 4th holiday is 870 million miles set during the 102-hour 1972 period.

This year's holiday officially runs from 6 p.m. Thursday (July 2) to midnight Sunday (July 5).

"Not only is Michigan heading towards its second best tourism year ever, but several tourist barometers show the state running ahead of the 1978 record," Ratke pointed out.

Auto Club routings to Lower Michigan vacation destinations are up 13 percent over the first five months of last year and are 8 percent above 1978. Requests for Upper Peninsula routings are down 2 percent over last year, but Mackinac Bridge crossings are 2 percent ahead of a year ago.

"Michigan continues to grow as a popular close-to-home vacation destination for residents of such bordering states as Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Wisconsin," Ratke said.

The nearly 1.3-million-member organization has assisted 25 percent more out-of-state residents interested in Michigan vacations than last year and 23 percent more than 1978. Some 84,000 more travelers have visited the state's 10 travel information centers so far this year over last.

A number of Michigan attractions also are experiencing banner years. A record 500,000 persons attended Holland's Tulip Time Festival last month while a record 1,000 visitors enjoyed Boyne City's Mushroom Festival in May. Business on both Mackinac Island and in the Irish Hills is up 10 percent over 1980.

Gasoline supplies are plentiful and costs have dropped steadily for the last nine weeks along main state highways.

Auto Club's pre-Fourth of July "fuel gauge" survey shows an average 86 percent of 300 stations checked along major highways will operate daylight hours, 41 percent after 9 p.m. and 12 percent after midnight. An average 5 percent of the stations were unsure of holiday hours.

Twenty-five persons were killed on Michigan roads during the 1980 July 4th weekend. Sixty-four percent of the at-fault drivers were either known or suspected of drinking.

Auto Club's "Bring 'Em Back Alive" Holiday News Service will report on traffic and tourism via a network of more than 160 radio stations. It will operate from 3 to 11 p.m. Thursday (July 2) and from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday (July 3-5).

north from the city of Auckland to Cape Reinga, the northernmost settlement of New Zealand.

What do you know of New Zealand? Probably that it is a country with a lot of sheep and which also produces tons of butter. Many people will have heard of the impressive geysers and thermal pools of Rotorua and of the majestic, snow capped Southern Alps, but who ever heard of the "Winterless North?"

Northland is a land of tranquillity. Miles of uncrowded highways wind through green, luxuriant countryside, now and then unveiling views of a blue ocean dotted with islands. Superb deep water harbours interspersed with a sharply indented coastline, formed by ancient volcanoes provide hundreds of miles of shoreline. Countless sandy bays hide between rocky promontories and form "private beaches" for anyone seeking seclusion. Game fishing, line fishing, scuba diving, yachting, it's all here, and right off the main tourist rack.

Tourism is a relatively new business to New Zealand and in particular to Northland, but the annual trickle of visitors is swelling. There have always been those "intrepid explorers" who have ventured into Northland. Zane Grey, the American Writer of Western stories, was a regular visitor to the Bay of Islands in the 1930's. He was a keen game fisherman and described the place as an "anglers Eldorado". It still is, and many keen anglers come annually to battle with the swordfish and striped marlin. The less ambitious come too, to fish from the rocks with rod and reel, and even the uninitiated can usually land a healthy sized snapper with a hook, line and sinker bought from a local shop.

Tales which extoll the beauty of the Bay of Islands are no exaggeration; it is the most attractive harbour in a country renowned for its natural beauty. It is also of historic importance to both Maori and European as it was the site of the first European settlement in New Zealand and the first permanent European contact with the indigenous Maori people with establishment of the mission stations. Many bloody battles between the races were fought here until the signing of the Treaty of Waitangi in 1840 which was to ensure equality for all. The first capital of New Zealand was established here but was later moved to its present site at Wellington. This fact, plus the lack of publicity, has slowed development in Northland; the population today is only one hundred thousand people. The Netherlands with a smaller area, supports thirteen million. Today's tourist can see the place little changed from that day in 1769, when Captain James Cook first sailed in and remarked on the beauty of the land. Little wonder that so many visitors who see the place for the first time state that "It should be the most expensive piece of real estate in the world." It's far from that, although time may change the situation.

The Bay of Islands is about 150 miles north from Auckland and there is about another 159 miles of land to the north. The road follows the coast and provides impressive views of the east coast harbours of Whangaroa and Doubtless Bay. Further north the peninsula narrows until only about ten miles of land divide the Pacific Ocean from the Tasman Sea. At Cape Reinga a lighthouse marks the "top of New Zealand" alongside the white lands of Spirits Bay where, according to Maori legend, the spirits of the dead depart this earth.

No need now to return by the same route. This is a land of infinite variety and to return by the west coast road is a unique experience for most travellers. Quite a different scene here, there are no sheltering islands closer than Australia, 1000 miles across the Tasman Sea. The hard packed sand of Ninety Mile Beach has formed an ideal road surface and Ninety Mile Beach is in fact a state highway with all the usual road rules applying. An actual seventy miles of travel here, flanked by the sea on the one side and mighty sand dunes on the other.

The west coast route back to Auckland passes through much of the Kauri forests of New Zealand protected now by an enlightened government. This is Hokianga County, once the scene of a flourishing trade in kauri timber. Ships and barges once transported these mighty logs around the country and across the world, but it does not happen now. Once it was realised that it takes about 600 years for a kauri tree to grow to maturity the trade ended and no such waste will ever happen again. Fortunately many fine samples of the giant kauri remain for all to see, and it is an exercise for the philosophical to gaze at one of these massive, aged trees and contemplate that it was probably growing here as a small bush at the time of Christ.

Just a few years back the only way to spend a Northland holiday was to bring a tent or caravan. Many people still do although it is no longer necessary. There is now ample first class accommodation available in motels which are growing in number. There are now also numerous boat trips to the outer islands for fishing or sightseeing, and commercial bus tours around the country. But those seeking the carnival atmosphere common in many American and European resorts will be disappointed. There are no slot machines, no casinos and no fair grounds. These attractions could only come with a huge increase in population and probably against a tide of resistance. Northland's attraction is for what nature has provided, and nature has done her job superbly. Like Camelot, Northland may have been subject to that law which was passed a distant moon ago.

Norman Pumflett.

Ps. Information about Northland may be obtained by writing to Northland Travel Promotions, Whangarei, New Zealand.

'Half of loaf' Canton passes partial ban

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Staff Writer

Township board members, who wanted a total ban on hunting in Canton, reluctantly settled for "half a loaf" Tuesday night.

The Trustees voted 6-0 to accept — "under protest" — a hunting ordinance drafted by a Hunting Control Committee, consisting of state, county and local law enforcement officials, that is far less stringent than the board wanted.

The board members wanted hunting completely banned within the township but the ordinance permits hunting west of Canton Center Road with shot not larger than Number 6 between Oct. 20 and March 1 each year.

What rankled board members the most was "outsiders" telling local residents and Trustee Board members what they could and could not do.

"What irks me the most is outsiders coming in and telling us what we have to do," Trustee Carol Bodenmiller told the Canton Eagle. "The people in the township, especially in subdivisions like Pilgrim Hills in the northwest section of Canton, wanted no hunting permitted at all."

"People on this Hunting Control Committee are saying that even though the people of Canton do not want hunting, they're going to tell us what we have to put up with."

"The people of Canton do not want hunting, the Trustee Board doesn't want it, yet someone else tells us what we have to do. There's no appeal — I guess — until next year when we should ask the Hunting Control Committee to review their recommendation and ordinance and put a total ban on hunting in Canton," Mrs. Bodenmiller said.

Sitting on the Hunting Control Board was a representative of the Dept. of Natural Resources, Michigan State Police, Wayne County Sheriff, plus Supervisor James Poole and Lt. Larry Stewart of the Canton Police Department.

According to the discussion Tuesday night, Trustee Board members were informed that they had no alternative but to either reject the committee's recommendation and the ordinance or accept "a small improvement in the situation."

Poole, who met with the HCC before the ordinance was drafted, was upset with the "either-or" stipulation, but went along in passing the ordinance.

"It was a compromise that was better than no ordinance at all," Poole commented. "I wanted no hunting at all in Canton."

Clerk John Flodin, who is an avid outdoor man and veteran hunter, informed the board of several state laws. "According to state law, it's unlawful to fire a shotgun within 150 feet of a residence," Flodin told the board.

When someone mentioned that hunters could hunt on a farmer's land with his permission, Flodin responded, "You must have written permission to hunt on a farmer's land. For instance, the letter must say 'John Farmer gives permission to Old Clyde to hunt on my property."

Because the recommendation and ordinance of the Hunting Control Committee fell so far short of the Trustee Board's desires, there was a question whether they would accept the proposals. After extended discussion, a motion was made to accept the recommendation but there was no support for quite some time.

One board member said "We should include in the motion that we are approving this under protest." Another suggested amending the ordinance as presented, but was informed that the ordinance had to be approved or rejected as it stood.

The recommendation was approved 6-0, with Stephen Larson absent. Then the ordinance itself was addressed, and after long discussion and weighing of alternatives, was also passed 6-0.

Garden tips

The beauty of plants and flowers

No flower's more beautiful than the acid-loving plants that grace our gardens. These are the plants that tolerate or need acidic soil conditions. The instructions for raising these plants sound more troublesome than the actual operation really is.

The best known of them are our broad-leaved evergreens, chief among which are the mountain laurel and the glorious Rhododendron, which includes species ranging from six inches to 50 feet high, including practically every color except vivid blue.

Also some deciduous shrubs such as dogwood, the heather tube, trailing arbutus, etc., certain well-known perennials, and the azaleas, which come in both evergreen and deciduous (leaf losing) species.

Many of these have the reputation of being temperamental, but if their soil needs are met, the rest of the cultivation is simple.

Instructions call for the removal of the clay or sandy loam in which most of our garden favorites thrive and the substitution of soil prepared and made acidic for the plant's use.

Sometimes plants do well in this special soil for about 2 years, and then, just as the owner becomes thoroughly enamored of their charms, they sicken and die.

This often results from the fact that the surrounding soil, by the percolation (seeping) of lime-carrying water, has been rendered alkaline (non-acidic). Earthworms are attracted to this soil and they too bring lime. City water, many times, contains lime so watering in summer tends to lessen acidity. These plants simply will not tolerate lime in any form, and every effort must be used to maintain acidity by using soil acidifiers, acid fertilizers and other chemical agents.

Too much trouble you say?

Not at all — not if you consider the beauty of your plants. Shelter from high winds, especially north and west, may be provided by trees, buildings, a hill or wall. Plant four or five feet away from walls because of the lime in the cement and mortar, or paint which will eventually work into the soil.

Rhododendrons which are well established, fed and watered, have few enemies. If tips wilt or die in summer, cut away until you have clean wood with no brown spots or holes.

Thus you can easily control borers and blight which destroys large branches unless removed. Lace flies sometimes feed on the underside of the foliage, giving it a sickly brown appearance. Spray with a hand or bath soap, one pound to 20 gallons of water, and repeat until the pest is eliminated. Get the spray on the underside of the leaves.

Acid-loving plants are surface feeders and fine rooted. Never stir up the earth. Any cleaning up of the bed must be done with a rake and weeds should be pulled. Don't forget to mulch which should consist of about 2½ inches of peat moss and an organic material such as cow manure. Renew this each year as the lower portion decomposes.

After using the correct acidifier and fertilizer, the only remaining requirement is water. If they wilt, spray the leaves and soak the soil in summer. Next season's blooms are formed in summer and autumn and depend on summer care.

They, as other evergreens, must not go into winter without a thorough soaking or they will winter kill.

An additional $150 is available as a plot or interment allowance, if burial isn't in a government cemetery. And if a veteran's death is service-connected, VA will pay up to $800 instead of the usual burial allowances.

It is also true that the VA payments will be reduced — or disallowed, if the veteran's employer or some state agency has already made these payments.

Which veterans are eligible for burial in a national or government cemetery? Those discharged under conditions other than dishonorable, and who have served in any of the following:

- The Viet Nam War
- The Korean War
- World War I
- World War II
- The Mexican Border Conflict
- The Spanish-American War

For specific benefits and/or forms, call on us or you may wish to contact the local VA office.

U of M to build hospital complex

New structure to replace obsolete Ann Arbor Facility

The State House of Representatives has cleared the way for construction of a quarter-of-a-billion dollar hospital at the University of Michigan.

The House today approved a resolution formally approving the massive project. The resolution now only needs Senate approval, according to sponsor Representative Gary Owen (D-Ypsilanti), chair of the Appropriations Subcommittee on Higher Education.

"This hospital, when completed in 1986, will be one of the finest medical facilities in the United States," said Owen.

"It will be a major medical resource for all of Michigan by having the capability of providing the most advanced medical care possible. In addition, it will be one of the nation's foremost research and teaching facilities."

Total cost for the hospital is projected at $285 million, with the state paying $173 million through bonds. The new facility will replace the current University hospital, which was completed in 1926 and has become functionally obsolete.

"This hospital will be a mini-industry in southeastern Michigan," Owen said.

"It will attract hundreds of private jobs because of the concentration of research and teaching at the hospital. Washtenaw County is already one of the high technology centers of the Midwest. Completion of the new University of Michigan hospital will strengthen that claim."

The Legislature has appropriated $6.5 million in the current fiscal year and an additional $6.65 million for fiscal year 1982, for planning and the start of construction. Contracts for utility relocation, construction of a retaining wall and other site preparation work will be awarded later this summer.

Children suffer from inhaling flowerheads

A chronic cough, intermittent fever, lethargy, loss of appetite and failure to grow are some of the symptoms occurring in small boys and girls after inhaling flower heads of timothy grass.

David L. Dudgeon, MD, reported four children who had serious health problems from inhaling the flowering grasses.

The problem for physicians is in diagnosing the problem. Dr. Dudgeon writes in the American Medical Association's publication, Archives of Surgery. The small flowers are not only difficult to spot with diagnostic equipment, but are difficult to remove from the bronchial tubes after discovery.

The grass flower usually does not block the airway completely, as would happen with an inhaled peanut, however, sometimes chest surgery is required.

Children involved were boys ages 10, 4 years, 18 months, and a girl age 19 months. The older boy had been suffering for ten months from the lodged timothy grass flower head before doctors finally were able to locate it and remove it. He then promptly recovered. One death has been reported from the grass flower head blockage.

Timothy flower heads, with closely packed, short, fine, shaft spiklets, act as a stationary obstruction. Barley, oats, rye, and related grains and grasses have fewer but longer firm, sharp spiklets. The grass heads usually migrate into the right bronchial area.

Seminar 'helps meet people'

"Where do I go to meet people?"

The lament is common among adults who aren't used to being single. To help answer the question, Washtenaw Community College is offering a two-hour course on Dating Methods for the Newly-Single Adult, on Thursday, July 9, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Association, Inc. will teach the course. A representative of that company says, "We will help people answer the question, 'What's available to me as a single person?' We'll talk about places they can go to meet other single people. There are a number of things people can do, and some things are more productive than others."

The Dating Methods course meets in the Adult Resources Center, 140 Student Center Building, on the Washtenaw Community College campus, 4800 East Huron River Drive in Ann Arbor.

There is no charge for the course, but participants are asked to register in advance.

For information or to register, call College staff members at (313) 973-3528.

Sumpter SCORES with this project

A program sponsored by the Wayne County Intermediate School District and funded federally has enabled area high school students to make some money this summer, and serve their community doing so. "Project SCORE," an acronym for Student Career Opportunities Through Relevant Experiences, provided the recent manpower which groomed Sumpter's Martinsvil-le Cemetery. Above, SCORE personnel Rex Pfeiffer (from left), Steve Schreck, William Coleman, Wesley Jones and Don Clontz, who are supervised by Linda Beaudrie and John McDuffie, carry out a variety of tasks at the cemetery. The youth are paid the $3.35 minimum wages, and are assigned various jobs in the township, according to Sumpter officials.

Belleville Medical Clinic adds a P.A. to its staff

Dan O'Brien is the newest addition to the staff of the Belleville Medical Clinic. O'Brien will serve as a physician assistant, trained in a wide variety of medical subjects that includes internal medicine, pediatrics, surgery, OB-GYN, pediatrics and other related fields.

Born in Lansing, O'Brien was raised in the Lansing area and became a Green Beret Medical Specialist during the Vietnam Conflict.

After his tour of armed services ended, O'Brien attended Michigan State University where he received a Bachelor of Science degree in psychology.

During this undergraduate work he performed as a Hemodialysis Technician and also an Emergency Medical Technician. In 1978, he entered Western Michigan University to attend their Physician's Assistant Program and graduated in the fall of 1980. He was awarded a Bachelor of Science Degree in Medicine and also the title of Physician Assistant. He then went on and passed his National Boards to become certified. Dan maintains his ties with the United States Army in the Reserve as a lieutenant.

To become certified, a P.A. must sit for and pass a National Certifying Board both oral and written.

In Michigan, they function under the direct supervision of a physician and can write for prescription medications. They are trained to do the appropriate physical examination, diagnose and treat the patient under the physician's supervision in those routine medical problems.

Allen awarded Purdue degree

Among the 4,472 students who completed degree requirements at Purdue University was a Romulus resident.

Celeste Christine Allen, of 34815 Beverly St., was awarded a Bachelor of Arts degree with majors in the humanities and education.

Bachelor's degrees were awarded to 3,438 students while 317 received associate (two-year) degrees. In the two groups, 259 graduated "with distinction."

Quinlan receives U of M scholarship

Nineteen Detroit-area graduating high school seniors, including one from Belleville, will attend the University of Michigan-Dearborn this fall on Regents-Alumni Merit Scholarships.

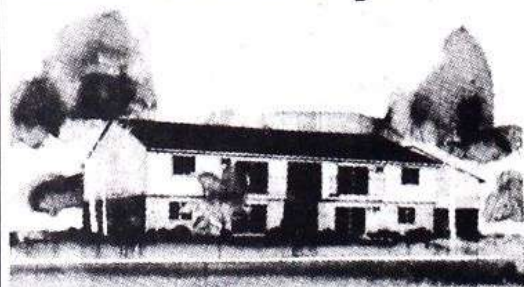

The local recipient of the scholarship is Kevin Quinlan, a Belleville High School graduate, who will be majoring in engineering.

The scholarships, which carry a $500 stipend, are awarded by the University of Michigan Alumni Society. Funds for the stipends are provided by the U-M's Board of Regents.

Over 100 students were interviewed by a 20-member alumni screening committee. The winners were then selected and recommended by the co-chairpersons of the Alumni Society's Board of Governors, Helen Morrison of Grosse Ile and Douglas Keller of Allen Park.

Rep. Mahalak bill would regulate passenger train speeds from cities

Representative Edward E. Mahalak, (D) Romulus, announced that the House approved a series of bills he has introduced that will regulate passenger train speeds.

The bills would transfer the authority to regulate passenger trains speeds from cities and villages to the Michigan Department of Transportation.

"I introduced these bills because I am very concerned about the future of passenger rail service in Michigan. If the cuts in federal transportation spending are as deep as anticipated, we may possibly see rail passenger service disappear from the state completely."

"These bills were approved in the House by an overwhelming margin, and I believe this action indicates the state's desire to keep passenger service in the state," Mahalak said.

Mahalak indicated that the reason for the proposed change in authority is to increase passenger train operators' ability to compete with other modes of transportation in the state; "Under current state statutes, cities and villages are allowed to arbitrarily restrict the speed of trains passing through their boundaries," Mahalak said.

"And many of the speed restrictions fall considerably below the national standards set by the Federal Rail Administration. Passenger trains cannot possibly compete with other modes of transportation if they have to slow down to 25 m.p.h. everytime they go through a city or village. It presently takes one hour and 50 minutes to transport passengers from Detroit to Toledo. You can get in a car and drive it in an hour."

The legislation as passed by the House would allow the Department of Transportation to set maximum speed limits. The cities and villages along the affected routes would be notified not less than 30 days prior to the actual speed changes. During the 30 day period, cities, villages, and railroad operators may appeal to the State Transportation Commission. In the case of an appeal, Mahalak said the speed limits would remain the same until the appeal can be heard and a decision can be made.

"I am optimistic about pending Senate action, and obtaining the Governor's signature," Mahalak said, "and hopefully passenger train operators can begin offering more competitive services in the near future."

Wayne city manager, Pat Cullen to retire

By SUE McDONALD
ANP News Editor

On June 20 Pat Cullen marked his 32nd anniversary of employment with the City of Wayne, but there won't be a 33rd anniversary for the city manager, who has announced he will retire as of July 17.

At the helm of the city since 1973, Cullen doesn't look on his decision as retirement, but rather a change in jobs. He will move from managing a city to being managed by a city as a self-employed consultant on municipal and community affairs.

It was in 1949 that Cullen became an employee of the City of Wayne, one of the first persons hired under Civil Service by then city manager Wallace Arrowsmith. He worked in the water department as a meter man and eventually worked his way to the position of supervisor.

From there he moved into the position of personnel director and worked on portions of the urban renewal program in the community. At one time in his career, he held a variety of positions — city assistant manager, personnel director, city clerk and housing director — all at the same time.

For awhile he served solely as assistant city manager and in 1973 assumed the position of city manager.

"I've done everything that can be done from a municipal standpoint," Cullen said of his time with the city. "I've been involved in just about everything."

While he may have been involved in just about everything over those 32 years, he looks on achieving financial stability in the community as one of his major accomplishments in his tenure as city manager.

Admittedly, Wayne has never really had financial problems, but Cullen feels that having departments which operate efficiently has helped Wayne hang on to that stability.

"The whole system has to be attended to to maintain that stability," he explained. "It can get out of whack, if the organization gets too large."

Another achievement for Cullen was the organization of the Department of Public Works in 1975, and although he sees his job as "mostly dealing with and maintaining a good stable community," he also sees himself as "plugging away at it everyday."

A longtime resident of the Wayne Community—his family located in the village in 1860 and five generations have grown up here—Cullen says a city manager, while he establishes the general organization of city government, he also must deal with the upper 10 percent — the unusual things, the exceptions, the irregularities.

"A city manager has to know what his objective is," Cullen explained. "He has to understand public services and know if those services are being handled properly."

Realtors foresee improving climate for home buyers

An indication of improving conditions for home buyers and sellers in coming months is reflected in a recent sample survey of the nation's Realtors.

As reported by the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors (WWOCBR), the survey revealed growing optimism about the market both in 1981 and over the next two years.

The survey, conducted by the Economics and Research Division of the National Association of Realtors in April, found the majority of respondents expect inflation rates to get no worse or even improve through summer and early fall. Nearly two thirds look for a drop in the next two years.

About half felt home mortgage interest rates would remain relatively stable through the summer while most of the remainder look for some decline. A majority see lower than present rates over the next two years.

Realtors generally see no significant deterioration in credit availability and look for it to remain about the same for the short term and increase in the next two years.

Summing up other findings, most of the Realtors surveyed expect both existing home and condominium sales to rise at an accelerating rate. With general agreement that home prices will increase, there was divided feeling about the rate of increase. Opinion was about equal on the rate being faster, the same or slower than in the preceding 12 months.

The survey also showed a much higher percentage of Realtors agreeing now is a good time to buy a home compared to the spring of 1980. Sixty percent said now was a good time to buy while another 22 percent indicated it was neither a particularly good or bad time.

Those believing it was a good time to buy pointed to three major factors: prices will increase, sellers are willing to help in financing at this time, and there is a good selection of existing homes available for sale. Other factors cited included sellers willing to take a lower price, expectation of only a slight decline in mortgage interest rates, rising incomes and availability of mortgage money.

The survey found an increasing degree of use for creative financing techniques in single family home transactions. Assumption of existing mortgages and owner take-back of second mortgages remain the most popular techniques. Other methods gaining in popularity include land contracts, owner take-back of first mortgages, assistance from friends and relatives, and wraparound mortgages.

Dems offer their plan for economic recovery

Senate Majority Leader William Faust (D-Westland) and Senator Doug Ross (D-Southfield) announced today a ten point economic redevelopment plan to begin recharging Michigan's listless economy.

The two Senators listed the ten proposals at a Detroit press conference:

- Reform Single Business Tax to Aid Small and New Businesses;
- Eliminate Tax on Worker's Comp and Unemployment Comp Costs;
- Cut Worker's Comp Costs;
- Establish "One-Stop" Business Permit Process;
- Sunset Paperwork;
- Eliminate Wasteful Rules and Regulations;
- Create Red Tape Hotline;
- Promote Auto Investment;

- Target State Resources for Capital Investment;
- Spur Local Development Networks;

Single Business Tax proposals (SB 240 & SB 360) and Paperwork Reductions (SB 323), as well as proposals that will be developed over the summer recess.

"This is not yet the Senate's or the Legislature's plan for attacking our economic ills," Ross concluded. "At this point, it only represents the views of two legislators. We will seek to enlist both the input and support of the Democratic and Republican leadership of the House and Senate, as well as the Governor, interest groups and the public over the summer in the hopes of enacting the plan as quickly as is possible."

'Seniors' complete studies

The June graduating class of the Wayne-Westland Community Schools' Adult-Community Education Program had three very special people among its graduates — Carol Sadley and her husband Walter and Robert Bowman.

The trio have worked for the past three years to complete high school requirements in order to receive their diplomas. However, what made them so unusual is the fact that they are senior citizens, who never finished high school, but for whom a diploma was a very important goal.

Mrs. Sadley was born in Bay City on Feb. 6, 1918. Her husband Walter, was born on Aug. 23, 1913, in Chicago. They have lived in Wayne for more than 30 years and raised nine children. Sadley was in the Air Force and worked for the Department of Defense for 36 years. While raising her family, Mrs. Sadley also drove school buses in Wayne and Livonia and worked as a marketing researcher for the University of Michigan.

When they retired, they became involved in the senior citizen activities at John Glenn High School. Sadley is the transportation chairman for the senior citizen field trips and sings in the Senior Choir. Mrs. Sadley has created projects for the Senior Citizen Bazaars. At the same time, they have been attending high school completion classes with the Wayne-Westland Adult Extension Service.

When it came time to walk up and receive their diplomas there were broad smiles on the faces of three area residents. The trio were among 120 graduates of the Adult-Community Education Program in the Wayne-Westland Community Schools. What made the threesome special and very happy is that as senior citizens they were able, after several years of study, to complete requirements for their high school diplomas. The proud graduates were Robert Bowman, Carol Sadley and her husband Walter.

Wayne city manager announces retirement

"You have to get the right man for the position, and then he has to make sure it (the work) gets done."

According to Cullen, it takes "a lot of experience" to be city manager and maintains that a city manager "knows by experience what conditions call for."

Cullen, 55, was able to take advantage of the city's retirement policy when he reached 55. He had the right combination, so to speak, of 55 years of age and 25 years of service—and then some. Married, he and his wife Joyce have six children.

His plans for the future don't include leaving the town he grew up in, and while he admits he may miss work, he says he "won't be out of this (managing) work, I'll be in it in a different way."

As a consultant he will work within the framework of the people he has come to know in his 32 years of service to the Wayne community, both in the private and public sectors.

The decision of who will be the next city manager now is in the hands of the City Council, for which the city manager serves at its pleasure. That's not a bad arrangement, according to Cullen, since it adapts well to difficulties.

So, come July 17, Pat Cullen will be leaving Wayne City Hall like his fellow employees, but unlike them he won't be back that next Monday.

State Library improvements could help local facilities

(The State Library is not only the center of information and knowledge, but also in the midst of reorganization. Here are State Senator William Faust's remarks to members of the Michigan Library Association during their annual Legislators Day held in Lansing recently on that subject.)

By WILLIAM FAUST
Senate Majority Leader

Oscar Wilde once said, "I have the simplest of taste — I am always satisfied with the best." I think that pretty well describes how we feel about libraries and the many services that libraries can provide to the people of Michigan.

Unfortunately, as you and I well know, one of our most important libraries — the State Library — has been unfairly handicapped for some time now in trying to do its job. Because I feel so strongly about that problem and believe that it's well within our grasp to do something about it, that is what I want to talk to you about today.

Simply, I need your help in getting proposals through the legislature to correct this sad situation.

I am well aware of the clout this organization has and how effectively you employ it. Your past success in working to obtain a fair share of state funding for libraries and the public they serve is well known and respected in the Legislature.

I know it takes more than luck to get good legislation enacted and that's why I'm asking you to join me in this effort. Let me fill you in on what we hope to do.

I recently reintroduced legislation to upgrade and improve the State Library by bringing it under the jurisdiction of the Legislature.

As you probably recall, I first introduced this legislation late last year, but the Legislature's need to concentrate its attention on getting the state budget passed did not leave time for a thorough consideration of this issue. Now we're going to have another go at it.

I think the potential scope of services that the State Library can offer the people of Michigan is too important to permit the Library to continue to languish — to languish — in the Department of Education.

Although it's true that the difficult economic problems that have afflicted Michigan for the past couple of years have necessitated drastic cutbacks in all areas of the state budget, the State Library experienced underfunding and understaffing for many years prior to the onset of our current economic difficulties.

For those who question what could be gained by placing the State Library under the jurisdiction of the Legislature, let me say that in my view — any changes we would make would be an improvement.

To begin with, bringing the State Library under the supervision of the Legislature would give it a full-fledged status of its own and deliver it from the "step-child" treatment that has been its fate.

But enough of the sins and omissions of previous years. As John Kennedy so aptly stated, "Our task now is not to fix the blame for the past, but to fix the course for the future."

If Senate Bills 200 and 201 become law, the responsibility for the supervision and administration of the State Library would be transferred from the Department of Education to the Legislative Council, a constitutionally mandated arm of the Legislature.

Also transferred from the Department of Education to the Legislative Council would be the responsibility for the administration of the state's cooperative library system. I don't think I have to remind you that's your funding mechanism.

Bringing the State Library under the supervision of the Legislature is an idea that can easily stand on its own. However, it becomes even more important and desirable when you consider that it is the first step in a long-range plan to establish a vast informational network that will markedly improve services at both state and local levels.

This network would include the State Library, local public libraries, public school libraries, the U.S. Library of Congress, state university libraries, the State Legislature, the Legislative Service Bureau, the legislative fiscal agencies and all other legislative informational sources throughout the country.

Because of the complexity of the world today and many of the problems that citizens and leaders and governmental officials deal with at all levels, our need to know and to be able to find out quickly is greater than ever. That pressure and those demands for accurate information and data will intensify even more in the future.

Fortunately, computerization and the information processing miracles made possible by the development and proliferation of minicomputers have significantly enhanced our ability to communicate rapidly with one another.

Given our need to know and our ability to transfer information rapidly, a communication network made up of various libraries and information sources would be a resource of fantastic value.

Furthermore, we will have a library network that is better integrated, has more services to offer and is more accessible to state and local governments and the individual citizen.

Happily, there are even more advantages to having an improved and expanded State Library. For example, it will be considerably easier for Michigan residents to become better informed about the great variety of issues that affect this state and the many events that take place here. Oh, if such a system had only been operational yesterday.

I want to emphasize that while a computerized informational library network will provide better service to those who utilize it, the confidentiality of government records, especially as they pertain to individuals, will be protected by adequate safeguards built into the system. All Michigan citizens can be certain that the individual's right to privacy will be carefully protected.

Transferring the State Library to the supervision of the Legislature and upgrading it, in terms of staffing, funding and services, are legislative priorities that you will be hearing a lot more about in the days and weeks ahead.

But there is another goal that many of us also want to see realized. I'm certain that it's no secret that I would like to see the State Library moved out of that rickety old building on Michigan Avenue here in Lansing and into the kind of suitable facility that is appropriate for such an institution.

My goal is to provide a new State Library facility. It's desperately needed — long past due. While I won't take the time here to divulge all the details, I do hope I can whet your interest by telling you that I shall soon propose a means to pay for a new State Library Facility. Let me further arouse your interest by telling you that the financing mechanism will NOT — will not — come from the state's general fund.

I intend to stay in close touch with this association and to keep you fully informed.

WC3 Western Center ready to open doors in September

The most recent addition to Wayne County Community College's regional campus network, the Western Regional Center, will possess features of a "composite campus" say WCCC officials. The $16 million facility, situated along

I-275 at Haggerty and Tyler Roads, is scheduled to open in late August. Complementing the recent Wayne County Community campuses in Downtown Detroit (the Downtown Center) and the Downriver Center in Taylor, the Western Regional Center is intended to offer specialized career and vocational programs in a unique educational setting.

"Basically, all of the traditional elements associated with a college campus will be present in the design of the Western Center," says Dr. Julius R. Brown, Regional Director.

"The architects for our center, Smith Hinchman & Grylls have provided us with a campus design of quadrangles, lawns, fountains and a clocktower, all integrated into the interior of our single, two-story building. The major campus structure, situated on 117 acres of land, will be an attractive contrast to the site itself, which will be retained as a nature preserve."

Specialized career and vocational offerings for the Fall Term Western but will include facilities for classrooms, a computer laboratory, a drawing and painting laboratory, a ceramics lab, science facilities and a greenhouse.

Similar "lab" provisions have been included for the college's programs in electronics, building trades, heating, air conditioning and ventilation, truck and diesel engine maintenance and learning resources. Usual student services such as a WCCC bookstore, child care center, student commons area and a cafeteria will be available.

"We are seeking to provide a sort of all-inclusive atmosphere here," remarks Dr. Brown. "The selection of the Van Buren Township site for our newest campus was made after extensive research to locate an area accessible to all parts of Western Wayne County."

The $16,000,000 Western Regional Center project is presently under construction by R.E. Dailey Company of Southfield. Construction for the project commenced in December, 1979 and is scheduled for completion by the end of August, 1981. The Western campus is expected to accommodate an ultimate student enrollment of 5,000 students.

For further information concerning the Western Regional Center, please contact the Western Center Field Office at 697-3000.

VAN BUREN TOWNSHIP PUBLIC HEARING MINUTES

JUNE 23, 1981 — INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT DISTRICT
FOR HURON VALLEY STEEL

Meeting called to order at 7:03 P.M. by Supervisor Cullin.

Roll Call: Present: Cullin, Craven, Welty, Domen, Wojie, Kureth, Toohey. Absent: None. Also present: Attorney James, Engineer Partridge, Secretary Dudick and approximately 10 interested citizens.

Donna Hall explained Act 198 P.A. 1974 dealing with Facility Exemption Certificates. The reason for granting these exemptions is to encourage business and give them the incentive to expand.

Mel Wallace spoke on behalf of Huron Valley Steel explaining that although the project is already ¾ completed at a cost of five million dollars, due to the present economic conditions and inflation they are asking for this assistance in this project. They hope in the future an additional 35 to 45 people will be employed. They are at present looking to perpetuate growth and hopefully continue to operate at a level of efficiency conducive to prosperity.

Supervisor Cullin asked if anyone wished to speak in opposition. Dave Wertz stated that he thought these exemptions should be used for new industries and before an established concern should be granted tax relief they should open their books for inspection of their financial condition. He would be in favor of a maximum 2 year granting of this exemption, and if need still existed they could reapply.

Donna Hall stated that the Board would act upon this Facility Exemption at the July 14, 1981 regular meeting.

Seeing no others wishing to speak the audience portion was closed.

Motion Toohey, support Wojie to adjourn. CARRIED.

Meeting adjourned at 7:15 P.M.

Respectfully submitted,
Doreen Craven, Clerk

Our Opinion

A nation struggling to make a comeback

America finds itself in a period of transition as it prepares to celebrate the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. Economic and philosophical transition.

Saturday's July 4th observance finds this nation in the midst of monumental struggle against inflation and the reality of foreign competition in the marketplace. Our ability to thwart the roots of rising prices and unacceptable levels of unemployment is being sorely tested these days.

Who would have thought that this land of abundant resources could be brought to its knees so resoundingly? Who would have thought that a country such as Japan could advance its technological skills so successfully as to help devastate an American automobile industry?

Today we witness a new conservatism which claims to have solutions to our economic shortcomings. Only time will tell if this budget balancing mentality holds the key to fiscal rejuvenation.

But such transition and its impact won't be on too many minds this Saturday. Neither will inflation, unemployment or military apriority.

Saturday will be a time of fireworks, parades, barbecues and family get togethers. A holiday in every sense of the word. As with all holidays, July 4 holds a special meaning for all of us. It serves as a reminder of the freedoms which form the cornerstone of this country's very existence. The freedoms which are a dream to much of the world.

Yes, America is in transition. And the days ahead hold plenty of appointments, plenty of missed opportunities, plenty of economic woes.

However, history also tells us that America has the fortitude to weather a storm and find a better day. There will be a good share of achievements ahead too. Attempts to balance budgets and increase the size of government will hopefully help turn America around.

We have the freedoms necessary to accomplish such a turnaround and that in itself provides us a good chance at a successful transition.

Freedom. Our forefathers gave us the tools to be the greatest nation on earth. If they're used properly, America will get moving again.

Is Social Security robbing you

115 million workers paid S.S. taxes in 1980

By Bernard F. Hillenbrand

The other day I was having a long talk with a couple of friends of mine when the conversation suddenly took a solemn ominous turn.

"I'm starting to feel less sorry for the elderly," Lynn Ketcham said abruptly, waking me with the bitterness in her voice. "They can walk into any development and get housing where parents and children are shut out. They always seem to get their way. Now I see our Social Security taxes may soar."

Mrs. Ketcham, a medical technologist who is taking time off from her career to raise a son, now has a second child on the way. A vivacious redhead with persistent good humor, she is hardly the venous type.

Turning to the other woman, I was surprised to see her nod in agreement. "The way they're operating the system now, I never expect to see any of that money," the neighbor added.

"From what I've been reading, our Social Security taxes will soon take 15 percent of payrolls," Mrs. Ketcham continued. "The people who are receiving benefits now never had to pay in that proportion of their income—they were given more of a chance to get settled. Anyone over 35 can't realize how difficult it is to get started today. They have an idea—I can't even talk to them about middle class families are living in tall apartments because they simply can't afford homes."

"I think you have to look at the statistics, look at the proportion of elderly who really live in poverty and do something about those people," Mrs. Ketcham said.

In fact, 14 percent of the nation's elderly have incomes below the poverty line, a greater proportion than among the general population. A 1977 study showed about three-fifths of all aged persons get at least half of their incomes from Social Security. It has become a primary source of income.

"Nor do I believe we'll ever get Social Security," Mrs. Ketcham continued. "If they raise the retirement age to save the system, we probably won't live long enough."

"It's not a problem for the elderly of today, the problem will occur when the 'baby boom' hits," she added.

Today the country's over-65 population is a ninth of the total, by the year 2025, it will be a fifth. The ratio of workers to beneficiaries is about three to one this year, by 2010 the number will drop to two to one.

"There is simply no way the workers are going to support such a large group of retirees," she said. "And we're the ones who are going to feel the backlash, in the long run. Why, the elderly are getting increases in Social Security that are higher than the raises workers are getting!"

I have long lobbied on behalf of older Americans. Personally, I don't agree with all Mrs. Ketcham has to say, but I do think Social Security is a potential source of intergenerational conflict, and we have to do something about it.

President Ronald Reagan should be credited for the initiative and courage to launch the first administrative move toward major overhaul. Oh, Congress will eventually get around to it, despite enormous political repercussions. They have to do something—and it can't be done on an annual piecemeal basis. Benefits have to be guaranteed so people can plan ahead for retirement.

Although few young people express their feelings so bluntly, Mrs. Ketcham is not the only one who believes Social Security has been misdirected. In a national survey conducted by Peter D. Hart Research Associates, Inc., for the National Commission on Social Security, 61 percent of those now working said they had little confidence funds would be available to pay their benefits.

"Few complained about paying benefits of people now retired," added Geoffrey Garin, a vice president at Hart. "Most felt the program should be better managed. In fact, Social Security turned out to be one of the few taxes people don't mind paying. Their antagonism was directed toward government, not the elderly," Garin said. "Some believed they were paying for too many programs that weren't in the original system, that people who haven't paid in shouldn't be able to collect. A majority did not want it to become a needs-based system."

The program presently funds three categories: a disability and survivors fund, retirement payments and health insurance.

"Is the Social Security system going broke? Is it in serious trouble? Most Americans have that question on their minds," said Rep. J.J. Pickle (D-Texas). "No more important challenge faces this government today than restoring confidence in Social Security. It is so much a part of the financial underpinnings of this country, and its economy, that confidence in Social Security may be viewed on an equal basis with tax and budget matters."

He outlined the system's three basic problems. Short-term shortages have been caused by inflation and unemployment, a condition that has driven the cash-flow level to such a dangerous point it may run out of money this year. Secondly, the program will suffer from the president's request that its budget be cut. Finally, long-term chaos is the potential result from increases in the aging population, unless dramatic changes are made now.

Some 115 million workers paid Social Security taxes in 1980. This year over half of the taxpayers pay more Social Security than income tax. Next year the system will spend $175 billion to cover the benefit checks and medical bills of some 36 million Americans. At the current rate of inflation and growth in the retired population, the system could be $71 billion short by 1990.

"I question whether future or current workers are willing to pay taxes as necessary to sustain continuing payments based on the current benefit formula," says Rep. Bill Archer (R-Texas).

Robert J. Samuelson, writing in the National Journal, said, "As people age they will worry more about the adequacy of retirement incomes, if government and business can't relieve these anxieties, we're inviting a future of frustration and conflict."

Ironically, one of the first things Budget Director David Stockman proposed as a short-term solution was a direct reduction in benefits for the young: he has reduced the numbers of college students eligible for survivor benefits.

This was politically expedient, since the young apparently are so disenfranchised they pose no threat to Congress. In an informal survey of 10 congressmen's offices, staff people reported a flood of letters on Social Security from elderly people fearing reduction of benefits, and great numbers from those between 55 and 62 who want to retire early. Some Congressmen have proposed eliminating this option. Most staff people said few letters came from young workers. Less than 1 percent of the mail received by the Social Security Administration comes from this group.

"With time running out Congress may correct short-term problems this term, but there is no brave political move to do anything about the future," said the National Journal's James W. Singer.

Congress faces no lack of solutions. Countless groups have made their reports: the options include raising taxes, increasing retirement age, reducing benefits, and funding parts of the program from general revenues. Organized labor and senior citizens' groups are strongly in favor of the latter point, while the business community and President Reagan's task force are opposed.

My proposal? The system would be more equitable if Congress were to allow "borrowing" between the three categories to prevent short-term crisis, made annual increases for inflation less generous, gradually increased retirement age, encouraged elderly to continue working and returned the fund to its original purpose as a program that provides retirement income. Needs-based elements should be taken out of Social Security and put in the regular budget.

According to former Social Security Commissioner Robert M. Ball, most people believe that Social Security taxes are somehow set apart to finance an individual's personal benefits, that they are an earned right as opposed to a welfare payment based on need. Only now that contributions are starting to hurt, some taxpayers are beginning to realize that they've put in more than they'll ever get out, and the system will only continue as long as workers are willing to pay today's rates.

"I have no illusions I'll ever see a penny of that money," said a young minister's wife who works in my office. "The only thing that is any comfort to me is that my grandparents are beneficiaries. I consider the 6.65 percent tax on my salary as a contribution to their well-being."

"It is a continual struggle," she said with a sigh. "Social Security is taking so much from workers that we can't afford to save for our own retirement. I think it is wrong. I don't think young workers are going to take it any more when they realize what a bum rap they're getting."

Someone robbed grandma

By TOM MOORADIAN
Managing Editor

Someone robbed Grandma Canup last week.

The thief or thieves pried open her apartment door and silently slipped in walked over to her bed while she was asleep, took her purse and her television set, then left the premises as silently and quickly as they entered.

Romulus police say that "grandma" was lucky. They don't know what would have happened if this thin-framed, meek 80-year-old woman had awoken and confronted the intruders.

In fact, they feel the B & E could have been even worse...but Grandma, whose full name is Maud Canup, really doesn't think so. After all the "cat burglars" made off with more than $400 in cold cash.

"I've been saving the money to buy my tombstone," she told one of the investigating police officers. "Now I just don't know how I'm going to raise all that money again."

Like many of the senior citizens who lived through the Great Depression, Mrs. Canup didn't trust banks. She remembers how the banks "in the old days didn't give me back the money I put in."

So she saved whatever she could from her Social Security checks, stashing away the cash in her purse. And the purse was always visible to those who came in and enjoyed her cookies and cake.

After all, grandma was still a great cook. And she was very generous with anything she baked, sharing her food with the kids in the neighborhood.

"Please don't print where she lives," a friend said, "they may think she has more money stashed away. She's barely making it on what she has and somebody has to go and do this."

Widowed some 15 years ago, the charming figure has had to live through many traumas, "but I've never been actually robbed. It's really frightening. Will they come back?"

Romulus police are investigating and have not dug up any suspects and it could be convincingly argued "that it was an inside job."

"The thief knew where to go and what to look for," one officer pointed out. "And they didn't touch anything else except the cash and the TV set."

The two most valuable possessions in grandma's life.

At least they didn't take the most priceless item for her - her life. The rest can be restored.

On quality education

EDITOR — In the light of the second millage defeat in the Van Buren School District in two months, we feel the need and responsibility to express our pastoral concern for the quality of education and the recent public response to this issue.

Our tendency to safeguard our affluent lifestyles at the expense of quality education — which is the right and privilege of every child — has become accentuated in recent times.

A failure to translate our affluence into providing for the essential education of the children of this community is in direct contradiction of our Judeo-Christian heritage of a generous concern for others.

We affirm that our personal resources are entrusted to us by God for the sake of the betterment of the entire community.

The current emphasis upon self-preoccupation is producing a devastating neglect for the educational progress for future generations in this area.

Our lifestyles have become more sacred than the right for our children to learn and for our teaching staff to receive esteem and dignity.

In spite of three years at the bargaining table and several millage defeats, the teachers of the Van Buren School District continue to teach without resorting to threats, accusations, and violence. We commend them for their integrity.

We applaud and encourage the youth of this school system who continue to work hard — in spite of low morale, uncertainty, and confusion surrounding their education. We further applaud and encourage all the people of this district as we maintain an open dialogue among teachers, children, administrators and parents.

Our community can be a place which counts education as a great asset; it can be a place where education takes a high priority. Let us hope and pray together that we may move to affirm a proper role to public education before the intervening months and years take that possibility away completely.

More about 'Victory Park'

EDITOR — S.B. wrote last week complaining about Victory Park in Belleville and I must agree, the park is shabby.

The Park Director for the City of Belleville has called the Wayne County Road Commission and asked that swings and teeter-totters be brought out of storage and put into place.

When he indicated that local help was being used to mow the Park lawn, he was told to stay out since using other than Road Commission labor could lead to a grievance being filed.

Officially, Victory Park is closed due to Road Commission budget cut-backs.

A member of the Belleville Park Commission has set out a few garbage cans in the Park, furnished plastic liners at her expense and sees to it that the trash is picked up. This too may have to stop.

I have looked into the possibility of using Public Act 87 of 1980 to acquire Victory Park. This is the same law used by Detroit to take Poletown.

It provides that one governmental unit may take property from another governmental unit when in the public necessity, and this determination is binding on the court.

Briefly it works like this: The acquiring agency establishes just compensation either by appraisal or a statement showing the basis for the amount offered.

In the case of Victory Park, I would suggest a nominal amount of one hundred dollars.

Even though Victory Park is zoned multiple dwelling it cannot be used for that since the city charter requires a vote of the people to make park land usable for any other purpose.

If the owner refuses the amount offered the case eventually comes before a jury of six for determination.

While this seems like a simple way for Belleville to acquire Victory Park, the litigation could cost the City tens of thousands of dollars which is far beyond our means.

Last year, the city requested that the Road Commission simply deed the Park to the city. This they refused, but did ask the City if they would like to request the Road Commission for a permit to operate the Park for a period of five years and maintain it.

Operating and maintaining under a permit has its disadvantages. The picnic tables are rotting, some broken. The teeter-totters have broken fulcrums.

It appears that the planks would have to be replaced and the fulcrums welded. The Comfort Station has 18 roof slates half or fully missing and there is consequent water damage inside the building.

Slate roofs are both difficult and expensive to repair.

What I'm saying is that under a permit to operate and maintain there would be a considerable capital outlay which would in effect become a gift to the Road Commission. Someone would have to be hired as an attendant at the Comfort Station which means another salary, and liability insurance would be still another cost.

I think most of us are unhappy about Victory Park but we haven't a solution.

On Landing Strip Lounge

EDITOR — The open hearing regarding the Landing Strip Lounge is now in the past. However, I would like to remind Romulus City Council and Mayor William Oakley of a few things that took place on Tuesday evening, June 9.

We sat peacefully and listened to the many negative remarks spoken by the city attorney. We can understand why, with this attitude of your attorney, you would not want to go to court, unless he was voicing the opinion or wishes of some of you.

But, he should remember that he, the same as you, is getting paid to represent the people of Romulus and seek to fulfill their wishes.

You must also remember that the people who spoke at the hearing conducted themselves in a very calm manner. There wasn't any screaming, swearing, or name calling.

We were simply endeavoring to assist you in making a decision to do your duty in enforcing the city ordinance, the one that forbids the type of activity that we've heard is practiced in the Landing Strip Lounge.

It then would be left up to the courts to judge whether our city ordinance is legal or not.

I cannot understand how you, especially Mayor Oakley can afford to alienate the senior citizens of this area of our city, nor can I understand how any of you can be obstinate to the business and professional people in their efforts to make Romulus an attractive place in which to live and do business.

One last thought: Please don't forget that these same calm, peaceful people who attended the hearing do go to the polls.

Why must middle class suffer?

EDITOR — Whenever a crisis appears the middle class and the poor especially the poor are made to tighten their belts and sacrifice themselves until the crisis is over.

Are the conglomerates and big business exclusive from tightening their belts and sacrificing themselves?

It seems that they are for they seem to prosper no matter the condition of our economy. It would indeed be a momentous occasion if they too were made to sacrifice and tighten their belts for two reasons:

• They then would be contributing equally to fight the crisis as the rest of us are made to do;

• The crisis soon would be over because they damn well would find a solution fast so they could again continue their share of the profits.

We have contributed a great deal to maintain this government.

We sacrificed our loved ones in battle, we lost the most productive years of our lives by being in the armed forces, we've lost jobs that have gone out of state, we've lost pensions because of these moves, our pensions and social security is being jeopardized.

Yet, this government is "for all the people, by the people, and of the people." Not just certain people. The government promised to guarantee our rights and what was promised us — not to take them away or to alter them.

If the dipping into the masses continues without regard to shrink their income — to cause loss of homes, cars, etc — hysteria will mount beyond comprehension so our leaders in government and the conglomerates join to bring about a just means so all could continue to be productive and maintain the living standard we are accustomed to.

Don't take away what is ours. Strive to better conditions without prejudice, color, or creed. After all that's what founded this great nation.

President Reagan wants to go beyond normal means to bring about a balanced economy without regards to what the consequences will bring to the majority.

You can rest assured the big business, oil companies and the rest of the conglomerates will go unscathed. When this nation showed compassion for the people we did not have the problems we do today. We gladly worked together then and this could happen again if we are not taken advantage of.

U.S. Postal's 'Taj Mahal'

EDITOR — I am writing to apprise you of an egregious waste of citizen funds in one of the most affluent areas in the country.

The U.S. Post Office Department, which recently increased stamp prices from 15 to 18 cents, is about to start building what amounts to a resort training site in my State Legislative District in Potomac, Maryland. There, the Post Office Department spent $6 1/2 million dollars for eighty acres of land in a residential area next to homes selling for $300,000 to $700,000.

The Department has said at one time or another that it will provide there a cocktail lounge, swimming pool, gymnasium, jogging trails, raft and forged the mighty Rouge River, only to tumble into the dirty water, crashing through the ice and sludge and forced to swim to shore, in the early days of one March. He worked late into that night trying to figure out why the good old raft had dumped him, and persevering to the end, he at last did forge the river and came out triumphant.

My son. My beloved son. As I watched his father pin the silver wings on his chest I knew that it was likely that one day in the very near future I might walk out under the stars and hear a happy voice shouting from the nearest star, "Hi mom. I made it!"

JOYCE HAGELTHORN

Reflections

From a star, my son

The black clouds were tumbling and rolling about the heavens, knocking into each other with loud, thunderous bangs, causing much breakage of those tenuous surfaces, and dumping tons of water on the airfield where long, slender, silver trainer jets were trembling in response.

The magnificent thunderous rolls of the Air Force band tried valiantly to shut out the thunderous rolls of nature's band, and combined, the sounds lent melodrama to an evening destined for melodrama.

My son was getting his wings!

Sitting beside me was his father holding the box in which lay the sterling silver wings which his mother had pinned on him those many years ago in California. He had worn them proudly as he flew through the clouds of war, and presently those wings had been joined by the many air medals and the Distinguished Flying Cross. His hands trembled as he caressed the box, laying in his lap, his eyes pinned on the back of the head of this son who was following his footsteps.

Lt. Allan Hagelthorn, pilot, son of Capt. Ben F. Hagelthorn, pilot!

A lump lodged permanently in my throat and tears hung on my eyelashes as I focused my eyes on the blond hair and slender body of my son a couple of rows in front of me and over a bit. On one side of me sat his young wife, her eyes glowing with the emotion of the moment, her smiles beaming with pride.

And because so much of the past rolls into an emotional moment, my mind and my heart inevitably turned to the first time I had seen this son, and that moment had been fraught with the same mixture of joy, and emotional acceptance of the pink and white, squirming little baby who opened huge, round eyes and promised me that never again would life be dull in my household.

From the time he discovered what electricity can do, I never walked into a dark house without trepidation and a bit of fear, for I knew that I was just as likely to get my teeth washed, my hair curled, or see the dishwasher jumping to give music as to get light when I flipped on the light switch.

This was the kid who acted on his wishes. As I sat there listening to the Brigadier General being optimistic and enthusiastic as he urged the young graduating pilots on to the stars, I knew that my kid didn't really need all that urging. The minute those wings would be pinned on his chest, the stars had better get prepared.

The laughter welled up inside of me as I remembered the time when he was ten years old, and a truckload of carpenters roared up my driveway to finish off the attic.

I knew that I hadn't called them. I knew the kids father hadn't called them, but I wasn't puzzled. For weeks this little fellow had been talking about his own private room in the attic.

And there was the time he had built a

Mona Grigg

Matti, Moku and the 4th of July

Funny how one thought can lead to another and another and, though they're not even related, pretty soon you're back to the original thought again.

For instance, I was thinking about this coming Saturday. About how it's called Independence Day on the calendars and in the history books, but no one ever really says "Independence Day" out loud.

It's always the "Fourth of July".

Unless you happened to be an old Finlander from the Copper Country named Matti—in which case, you would say, "Fouert July". All one word.

The reason Matti would say "Fouert-July" is because the Finnish language doesn't recognize words like, "of", "to", and "the".

Thus, if you go to the Copper Country (the tip of the rabbit's ear in the U.P.), you are likely to hear what sounds like toddler talk: "Let's go store," or "I'm going sauna".

People in the Copper Country speak their own unique kind of patois or "pidgin", and it takes some getting used to if you're not used to it.

Sometimes they combine Finnish and English in a sort of "Finnish", as they call it.

I was born in the Copper Country, and spent every summer of my youth roaming Lake Superior beaches and climbing "rock piles" (the "innards" dug out of copper mines.).

I learned enough Finnish to keep my grandmother happy, but not enough to either speak or understand whole conversations.

But every summer I picked up the "pidgin" and spoke it like a native... then dropped it like a hot potato along about Flint on the way home. Up there, if you didn't speak their "brogue" (that's what they call it), you could be mistaken for a tourist—perish the thought.

It's a funny thing up there. Their very existence depends on the tourist, yet the locals would just as soon close the borders at L'anse or Baraga and not let anyone in who didn't have positive proof of kinship.

The suspicion comes, I think, from their feelings for their land. The Copper Country still has some of the most spectacular natural scenery in Michigan and the people work hard to protect it—mainly by leaving it alone.

The other reason they're so suspicious is that they think anyone who would live in or near Detroit has to be crazy—and they're not sure they want to share their space with a bunch of crazies.

But getting back to the brogue: I found that, without much effort, I could pick it up and drop it, quick as a wink, as the need arose. When I was up there, I was ashamed of proper English; when I was down here, I wouldn't have been caught dead talking "Up North".

That's the way it is on Maui, too. The natives can drop proper English and pick up "pidgin"—and vice versa—at the drop of a vowel.

What made me think of it is that, some years ago, we moved to the island of Maui. At the time, we thought Hawaii was Honolulu and Pearl Harbor. We had never even heard of Maui. We read all the guide books we could get our hands on, wanting to know: Did the natives speak English? Did they live in grass huts? Would we have to eat poi? (Answers: 1) Now and then, 2) Only during the day, so as not to disappoint the tourists, and 3) not having to eat poi was the only advantage I could see to being a "Haole".) (Translation: White person (though you could be black and still be a "Haole"), mainlander, tourist; usually preceded by the word "dumb".)

The dumb Haole, for instance, didn't know that those little gecko lizards squealing at you from the ceiling were really pets, there to keep the bug population down, or that when someone asked you if you wanted some tuna, they didn't bring it in a can, but rather straight from the ocean, and it stared at you ings of Mother Nature were things mere

Well, this haole might have been dumb, but she never felt more at home. The product of the Copper Country, 4,000 miles away, picked up the island pidgin and way of life (slow and easy) as though she had been born to it.

It was a while before I realized that the reason I felt so comfortable with the Hawaiian pidgin was that it was uncannily similar to the Copper Country brogue.

"You like go fisheen?" could have been said by Matti as well as by Moku. They would have understood one another perfectly. They also would have understood one another's feelings about the territory they occupied.

The spectacular scenery, the workings of Mither Nature were things mere mortals shouldn't tamper with. The tourists, by their very numbers, inevitably destroyed the natural beauty that drew them there. Thus, imaginary borders and proofs of kinship by way of pidgin and brogue.

So what does all this have to do with this coming Saturday? Well, I was just thinking that, while Matti would have said, "Fouert July", Moku would have said "Fouert'a-July". Close enough. Have a Happy!

Telegram to Mom

Mom, before you enter those Pearly Gates, please read this telegram.

I'm going to miss our little talks, but, somehow I'll know you'll hear me. Remember our conversations of me going to school, well, I am.

I hope you'll be proud of me. I know you know I can do it and, so do I. I just have to prove myself to others, now.

When you were with us I told you that I thought you were an angel. Tears would come to your eyes, but, nevertheless you still are.

You taught me so much through your endless love and understanding. I'm wiser now.

We were very close, you and I.

Mom, I'm going to miss you a great deal. I'm happy because you give me strength each day.

And mom, I'm so happy for you, because you're where, "the roses never fade".

The Day of Independence

*Independence was their goal
Those men of liberty.
They strived to build a nation
Of human dignity.*

*"Give me liberty or give me death"
Became their battle cry.
The shot 't was heard about the world
Had caused great men to die.*

*Washington and Franklin,
Tom Payne and all the rest,
An untried ideology
They gave the world to test.*

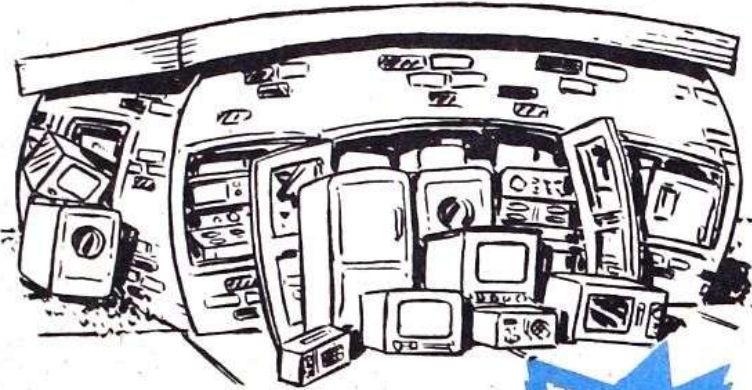

*Two hundred years adjusting
Was freedom torn and bruised
But, kept the tyrant well at bay
Till he was forced to lose.*

*In human rights and valor,
In demand of our attendance,
Are kept alive each year we toast
The day of independence.*

Fishing Lines

By BOB SAWITSKI

Now that summer is here, most fishermen are dreading the long, hot, non-productive angling days that lie ahead. Their thoughts are conjuring up visions of snarled lines, insect invasions and all the other pitfalls normally associated with night fishing.

Night is believed to be the most productive time to fish during the "dog days" of summer. However, that may not really be the case.

There are certain areas in just about every lake in the state of Michigan where it's possible to consistently catch big bass, pike and muskies throughout the summer months. But most fishermen shy away from these areas because it's probably just as difficult to fish these spots as it is fishing after dark.

I'm talking about weedbeds. Not a clump of reeds here and there. I mean heavy weedbeds, where the only means of moving about is with either a pushpole or a paddle. Weedbeds so thick they foul your electric trolling motor every time you turn it on.

A couple years ago I interviewed nationally renowned angling expert Al Linder. He told me of an experiment he conducted on a private lake in his home state of Minnesota. In this lake, there was a shallow, weed-choked bay where neither fishermen nor water skiers ventured. But one summer day Linder decided to see just what, if anything, inhabited this bay.

He poled his way into the coontail weeds, reached down in the water and pulled up a handful. The coontail had feathery growths that extended down the stem for about a foot from the top. Below that, the fuzz vanished and all that remained was a skinny stem. The water was only four feet deep, but fish could easily move around through the maze of stems.

It turned out that Linder caught the biggest bass in the lake from that bay. The fish were in there all summer until cold autumn temperatures forced them out into deeper water.

I make it a habit never to pass up a likely looking weedbed regardless of whether it's hot or cold outside.

In hot weather, like the shade trees in your yard, weeds cool the surrounding water and, depending upon the density and type of weeds, the water can be anywhere from six to 15 degrees cooler than in open water.

During a cold front, I've found that bass will burrow down deep in the weeds, hug the bottom, and stay put until the weather improves.

So what's the best way to fish thick weedbeds? It would be great if you could draw the fish out of the weeds by hitting the edges with spinnerbaits. You'll catch a few fish this way, but the biggest fish are right in the thick stuff. You have to go in and get 'em.

Heavy line and stiff rods are musts. Do not attempt this type of fishing with anything less than 20 pound test line. Some fishermen prefer braided line over monofilament line for the kind of angling because it doesn't stretch as much as monoline.

Resistance to abrasion is only one reason for using heavy line in thick cover. You'll want to be able to horse your fish out into open water to battle them without fear of having the fish wrap your line around a limb or a clump of weeds and break off.

The next best method of fishing heavy weeds is to run a buzz bait over the surface. If you're fishing a field of lilly pads, try to stop the lure now and then on a pad.

If a buzz bait fails, my next step is to tie on some type of weedless surface lure that I can let lie motionless and give it an enticing twitch once in awhile. A Superfrog is great for this.

Still no luck? Then we have to get down where the fish are. It's time to bring out the plastic worms. Or, if you like, try a Snagless Sally, Timber King spoon, a Timber Spin, or a Johnson's Silver Minnow, and snake them through the weeds. It sometimes helps to add a pork rind strip, a pork frog or a plastic twister-tail grub to these lures.

Fishermen, don't fret. If you change your tactics a little, it's still possible to catch fish in the sunshine during the summer.

SUMMERTIME: New tactics increase catch

Area festivals offer weekend of enjoyment

Those who enjoy their entertainment with an ethnic flair will find what they're after at two upcoming events; the Hungarian American Cultural Center's third annual picnic on July 11 and 12 and the fourth annual Czechoslovak-American Festival on July 10 through 12.

The Cultural Center, located at 26327 Goddard between Beech Daly and Inkster in Taylor, will be the site of the Hungarian get together. This festivity will include music by the Blue Danube, Hungarian dance groups, ethnic foods, wine and artifacts along with performances by the Ukrainian folk, Down River German Club and Slovene dancers.

Picnic hours are scheduled from noon until 10 p.m. each day and the admission charge is $1.

Gaily costumed dancers will perform to Czechoslovakian polka, waltz and czardas music during the Czechoslovak-American Festival at the Yack Arena, located at Eureka and Third in Wyandotte.

Sponsored by Sokol Detroit, a non-profit organization, and its ladies auxiliary, the festival will feature numerous home-made delicacies in addition to continuous musical entertainment.

Visitors will receive a free souvenir booklet featuring the Czechoslovakian heritage and can tour a variety of booths and exhibits devoted to various artifacts. One of the event's unique aspects is a genealogical display of "Roots," a giant map of Czechoslovakia pinpointing the origins of more than 1400 Detroit area families.

Festival hours are 6 p.m. to 1 a.m. on July 10; 4 p.m. to 1 a.m. on July 11, and 2 to 10 p.m. July 12. Admission is $2.50 for adults, $2 for senior citizens and no charge for children 12 and under accompanied by an adult.

In conjunction with the festival, Sokol Detroit will conduct a Heritage Run at 8 a.m. July 11 on Belle Isle. T-shirts and certificates will be awarded to participants in the 6.2 mile and 3.1 mile runs.

Colorfully-clad dancers will be among the featured performers at two upcoming ethnic events: the Czechoslovak American Festival in Wyandotte on July 10 through 12 and the Hungarian American Cultural Center's picnic in Taylor on July 11 and 12. Both events feature live entertainment, refreshments and exhibits. Photo by Lothar Konietzko.

'Superman' surpasses original in action, storyline

By STEVE K. WALZ
Special to Playtime

If you enjoyed "Superman I," then you'll love the sequel.

The effects in "Superman II" are even more dazzling than those in the original pic, and the storyline is just as exciting. In fact, the last hour of "Superman II" offers more action per minute than any film I've seen so far this year. One columnist has suggested that Chris Reeve, who portrays the legendary superhero, be nominated for an Oscar.

laws who were sent to the Phantom Zone by Superman's father are released when the caped hero hurls a nuclear device, which was placed in the Eiffel Tower, into outer space.

The ensuing shock waves from the explosion send the criminals, Ursa (Sarah Douglas), Non (Jack O'Halloran) and Zod (Terence Stamp), to the moon where they destroy an Earth expeditionary force. They then proceed on to Houston, Idaho.

Meanwhile, Lois Lane (Margot Kidder) and Clark Kent are sent on an investigative assignment to a Niagara Falls honeymoon ripoff hotel. There Lois also discovers a startling secret about Clark. And, if things aren't heating up enough already, Superman's nemesis, Lex Luthor, escapes from jail, finds the superhero's Fortress of Solitude and then links up with the three aliens from Krypton.

This sets the stage for a power-packed adventure which culminates in a colossal battle in and around the streets of New York City. It simply boggles the mind to see how Colin Chilvers achieves the film's visual effects, which are urged on by John Williams' upbeat score.

The acting is first rate, although I think there are times when Chris Reeve overplays Clark Kent a bit too much. Sometimes Clark looks as if he's an absolute twit, which isn't the way George Reeves played him on the tube. Margot Kidder's Lois Lane is way too hip, but does an overall credible job.

"Superman II" is one of those films that you can enjoy over and over again with the kids. Heck, I saw the first one three times. Oh yes, "Superman III" will commence production sometime in 1982 — can't wait!

Insight and humor make Four Seasons a special film

MOVIES

"The Four Seasons" from Universal Pictures. Directed and written by Alan Alda. Starring Alan Alda, Carol Burnett, Len Cariou, Jack Weston. Rated "PG."

By J. T. YURKO
Special to Playtime

Take three couples and show one year of their lives, a summer, fall, winter, spring of each couple's joys and sorrows, fights and fantasies, raptures and regrets. There's nothing terribly out of the ordinary — no traumas, no psychotics, just three average couples who could be the Smiths down the street.

Problem for director/screenwriter Alda: How do you present such situations without making them boring and bland to a movie audience currently being fed laser blasts and comic-book heroes? Answer, use those devices that made "M*A*S*H" a hit for so many years — insight and humor.

With "Four Seasons" Alda proves he has ample amounts of both. If you can discuss war and make it both funny and easily profound, examining marriage and relationships should be a piece of the cake.

Putting icing on the cake are Alda's co-stars, as talented a group of actors as ever shone on the screen. Alda pairs with Burnett (that's no surprise, they are old buddies), Jack Weston matches up with Rita Moreno (a peculiar pairing, but I've seen stranger pairings in real life), and Len Cariou teams first with Sandy Dennis and then with Bess Armstrong.

The Cariou-Dennis pairing is one that splits up into divorce, and although we are supposed to feel for Dennis, Alda presents her as such a space cadet that the agony of divorce is tempered by a "he should have done it years ago" attitude.

When Cariou shows up with the nymphette, Armstrong, we expect her to be just a young dalliance by Cariou, but Alda surprises us by making her into one of the most mature and in-control characters.

The four seasons are nicely photographed, and the music by Vivaldi is wonderful anytime. With a summer to be filled with the roar and gore of special effects, Alda reminds us that good writing is actually the most special of special effects.

Oldfield provides pleasant surprise

MIKE OLDFIELD
"QE2"
(Virgin/Epic)

Well, now, here's a surprise. Mike Oldfield, of "Tubular Bells" (aka "Theme From The Exorcist") fame is still making albums, whereas I figured him to be doing a Rip Van Winkle number, put to sleep by his own music. Anyway, one night after I was shipped "QE2" by CBS, I was having trouble falling asleep, so I decided to read some, and just to make sure I'd nod soon, I stuck this record on my turntable, cued it up, and jumped under the covers.

Did it work? Nope. As a matter of fact, I ended up listening to it twice, while giving up on reading. It's hard to read when you're amazed. Not just amazed that Mike Oldfield had made a good album, but rather that what I was listening to was one of the best albums of the year.

No longer indulging himself with LP-long "songs," Oldfield has also quit playing all of the instruments himself, and the results are brilliant; nearly all of the nine songs are top-notch, and playing alongside of Oldfield (who plays fantastic guitar throughout the album) are such jazz/rock luminaries as Phil Collins and Morris Pert. The few vocals on "QE2" are adeptly handled by Maggie Riley, but they still seem a bit out of place.

Oldfield wrote all but two of the songs, and those two are perfectly (if offbeat) chosen cover tunes. What's the last band you'd expect to be covered by an overly-intellectual musician? No, besides the Ramones.

Yep, Abba, and this version of "Arrival" exceeds all expectations, showing (finally!) that Mike Oldfield does indeed have a sense of humor. The other non-original is "Wonderful Land," an obscure song by England's Shadows, who were the British equivalent to the Ventures, and Oldfield's blazing guitar lines make this a definite highlight.

For a change of pace, you should check out "QE2." It surprised me, and it will you too.

There's a new rock showcase in the area that looks to not only give Center Stage a run for it's money concert-wise, but also the entire Detroit area. It's called Nitro, located at Schoolcraft and Telegraph, in the building which formerly housed Uncle Sam's. One thing though: to be admitted to Nitro you must be at least 21 years of age. Here's a list of upcoming concerts:

July 5 - Rail, Soldier

July 7 - David Johansen
July 12 - Joan Jett
July 14 - Psychedelic Furs
The schedule for Canton's Center Stage is as follows:
July 7 - Humble Pie
July 28 - John Kay & Steppenwolf
August 4 - Janis Ian.

Fair entries sought

More than 10,000 Michigan residents displayed their culinary, agricultural and artistic talents at last year's Michigan State Fair. The 1981 Fair's lineup of new and expanded contests is expected to attract an even greater number of exhibitors vying for blue ribbons, cash prizes, trophies, gifts and plaques.

Entry forms now are available to anyone who wants to submit a home-made, home-grown, home-bred exhibit or showcase at the 1981 Michigan State Fair.

The return deadline is Aug. 1 for all entry forms except those for the horse show, which has a July 21 deadline. The 1981 Michigan State Fair opens Friday, Aug. 28, and runs for 11 days through Labor Day, Sept. 7.

Entry forms and premium books — outlining contest fees and rules — can be obtained without charge by writing the Entry Department, Michigan State Fairgrounds, Detroit 48203, or by calling (313) 368-1000.

Eye on Leisure

By LOTHAR KONIETZKO

Head over heels

Festival time is once again upon us. One of the area's most gala activities, the 10th annual Westland Summer Festival, runs through Sunday. Future festivals are planned in Canton and Wayne. These events provide an opportunity for mom and dad and all the kids to get out and have some fun. And if you're young and full of energy, such as 10-year-old Shannon Fairchild of Canton, a day at the park can be something to flip over.

Two comedies close Hilberry Festival

Comedies by Alan Ayckbourn and Neil Simon, successful comic playwrights in Britain and America, close the Hilberry Theatre Festival at Wayne State University, playing for two weeks opening July 8.

Ayckbourn's "Bedroom Farce," a comedy which the playwright calls "a study of the British in bed, with everything except sex," plays upstairs on the Hilberry stage, while Simon's "California Suite," a quartet of scenes in a posh California hotel, is performed downstairs on the Studio stage. Performance dates are July 8-11 and 15-18 at 8:30 p.m. "Bedroom Farce," an off-beat comedy by the author of "Absurd Person Singular," centers on a couple whose marriage is on the rocks. Trevor and Susannah inflict their miseries on their nearest and dearest friends, three couples besieged in their own bedrooms by the suffering pair. Through an endless night, Trevor and Susannah ruin a party, aggravate back pain, and interrupt a seafood meal in bed.

The cast includes Andrew Barnicle, Sara Morrison Barnicle, Richard Bradshaw, Neil Dalley, Elizabeth Gulick Eastman, Marian Mills, Maria Angela Tirabassi and Mark Tymchysyn. Directing "Bedroom Farce" is Anthony Schmitt, with scenery by Cutis Vandenberg, costumes by Marilyn Renaud and lighting by Reid Downey.

"California Suite" was Simon's first play after his move from New York to Los Angeles. The setting is similar to his earlier "Plaza Suite," only this time the playlets take place in a suite of a Beverly Hills hotel. Four different sets of people occupy the suite at different times, including visitors from New York, Philadelphia, London and Chicago.

For reservations, contact the box office at 577-2972.

BUSINESS

Visitor will win trip to Disneyland

A lucky visitor to the new American Rib family restaurant in Canton will win a free trip to Disneyland on July 12 as part of the restaurant's grand opening celebration. Included in the evening's festivities will be clowns, balloons and free hot dogs for children 12 and under.

The winner, to be selected in a special drawing on July 12, will receive free air fare to Disneyland for two adults and one child, hotel reservations for five nights and four days and free car rental.

Registration forms are available at the restaurant, located at 39485 Joy Road, during business hours — Monday through Thursday, 7 a.m. to 1 a.m.; Friday and Saturday, 7 a.m. to 4 a.m., and Sunday, 7 a.m. to 1 a.m.

"Help yourself" sets the mood for warm weather entertaining, easy on the hostess and fun for the guests. Hearty easy-to-serve foods and a pitcherful of a thirst-quenching beverage are the ingredients for a successful meal.

Highlight is on the Melon Cooler, a spirited beverage in tune with today's active life-styles. Lemonade flavor drink mix, fresh cantaloupe and rum are whirled in the blender for smooth consistency that is great tasting, refreshing and nutritious. (Each 8-ounce serving provides 70 percent of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances of vitamins A and C.) And the built-in convenience of lemonade flavor mix makes replenishments easy.

For a welcome addition to the traditional meat accompaniment, serve Cheese Souffle, hot from oven to table — tasty and satisfying.

Melon Cooler

- 1 scoop Country Time lemonade flavor drink mix
- ½ cup water
- 1 cup crushed ice
- 2 cups cantaloupe chunks*
- ½ cup light rum (optional)*

*Or use 2 cups watermelon chunks and omit rum.

Combine all ingredients in electric blender container. Blend until smooth. Serve over additional ice, if desired. Makes about 3 cups or 3 servings.

Cheese Souffle

- ¼ cup Minute tapioca
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup milk
- 1 cup shredded cheddar cheese (4 oz.)
- 4 egg whites
- 4 egg yolks

Combine tapioca, salt and milk in saucepan; let stand 5 minutes. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat. Add cheese, stirring until melted. Cool slightly. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Beat egg yolks until thick and light in color; beat in tapioca mixture. Fold into beaten egg whites. Pour into 1½-quart casserole. Place casserole in pan of hot water. Bake at 350° for 50 to 55 minutes, or until firm. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Ben Scotts chalk up 60 years of togetherness

Sixty years of memories were on parade May 11 as Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin R. Scott of 12121 Elmview, Romulus, marked their 60th wedding anniversary. Hosting their own party (they wish), the "bride and groom" welcomed guests from Monroe, Rochester, Troy, Wayne, Tecumseh, Ortonville, Romulus, Belleville and New Boston as well as from Baton Rouge, La. Two members of the 1921 wedding party in attendance were Ellen Koester and Ruth Miank of Romulus.

The Tin Lizzie in Belleville was the setting for the celebration which included a specially decorated cake made by Gladys Baldwin of Belleville. Benjamin R. Scott took Ada Mc Bride of Romulus for his bride on May 11, 1921 at the home of the bride's parents in Romulus. From their union, four children were born: Mrs. Jack (Betty Jane) Levick of Rochester, Earl R. Scott, who lives with his wife, Delphine, in Troy; Ruth Bleeker of Belleville; and Mrs. Gerald (Mary Lou) Ratz of Monroe. Also on their family tree are 12 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren with another on its way.

Born and raised on Romulus area farms, the Scotts lived for 25 years in Detroit while Ben was employed with the Detroit Police Department. At that time city police officers were required to reside within the city limits. After his retirement in 1946, the family moved back to Romulus where they cared for Ben's father, Mike Scott, following Mrs. Scott's death. They have lived at their present address for 28 years.

Before her marriage, Ada worked in banking, gave it up to raise her family, then went back to her job while living in Detroit. While employed at the old National Bank of Detroit in Belleville, she served under Merrill Bird and Olin Wyman, former NBD presidents, retiring in 1962.

Both Scotts are members of the Community United Methodist Church where Ada was church organist and choir director for many years. A veteran of World War I, 83-year-old Ben now spends his leisure time hunting, fishing and gardening and his wife (two years his junior) enjoys music and needlework.

By LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

Covering the wedding scene (doing the write-ups) has long been a part of being Suburban Living Editor, just one aspect in the overseerage of that section of the paper which once bore the logo, "Society" or "Women's Pages." Formerly the exclusive domain of the distaff side, its confines now include just about any subject.

Prior to being christened with the editorship and taking possession of an "official" desk, however, those who, what, where, when and why's were pounded out on a table top, snack bar and deck at home.

After a decade of being a "stringer" (local correspondent doing "Sumpter Socials") as well as a feature writer, Ray Clift and Lew Robson (then co-publishers along with Wes Willett) asked if I'd be interested in doing "society news" from their office. And, oh, was I. But — not wanting to leave my little trio to sitters — I had to decline their tempting offer.

They came up with an idea, though, that worked well for all of us (and eventually led to that "inside-job. They simply sent anything with a feminine flavor (engagements, weddings, showers, anniversaries, family reunions, births, Girl Scout stuff, club news, etc.) via courier out to the house.

And even before gathering the Sumpter news, I'd done an earlier weekly column, "County Line Notes", which carried my by-line in my late teens. So — in all, yours truly has been with Associated Newspapers for some 33 years. Whew! And, since this IS the month for brides (and the third anniversary of "potpourri") weddings will be the topic for this week's dissertation.

It's been fun handling engagements and weddings and seeing the different touches and changes evolving over the years; the greatest of which was in the locale of the ceremony. The trend towards meadows, arboretums, public parks and hillsides was surprising yet understandable. But then the "I do's" began in motorboats, on horseback, water skis, rollerskates and even aboard planes with parachutes strapped to the couple's backs for the freefalls which followed.

Young men and women began composing their own, personal nuptial vows; popular music crept into a secular world and bridal wear took a turn toward peasantry.

There have been the expected changes in fashion since wedding questionnaires became part of my life and at the start practically every bride was garbed in Chantilly lace with fitted bodice, scoop neckline, fitted wristpoint sleeves and bouffant skirts with tier upon tier of lace. That was the norm until the A-line mode and the lifted (empire) waistline came into being. The pointed sleeve was (and still is) OUT and the full bishop sleeve with its wide cuff took over. At present the trend is toward Queen Anne necklines, flounced hems and wristlines and crystal pleated skirts (NOT accordion, if you please.)

As for color, white and ivory have always been favored and though I, myself, was a child attendant in a wedding where the bride wore baby blue finery, I have never dealt with anything but the white look.

Just before the 20th century, however, bridal gowns could be any color. According to one rhyme current in the Victorian era, the shade of a woman's wedding dress reflected the future prosperity of her marriage. Thus:

- Married in white, you have chosen all right.
- Married in black, you will wish yourself back.
- Married in red, you will wish yourself dead.
- Married in green, ashamed to be seen.
- Married in blue, you will always be true.
- Married in pearl, you will live in a whirl.
- Married in yellow, ashamed of your fellow.
- Married in brown, you will live out of town.
- Married in pink, your fortunes will sink.

Still with an eye on history, white (or off-white) was not always the case. In fact, prior to the 20th century, wedding gowns could be any color. About 100 years ago, however, only a reasonably well-to-do bride — or one whose family had pretensions to wealth — wore white to her wedding, since a white gown was a sign that the bride's father was rich enough to buy his daughter a dress that she would wear only once. Since clothing was expensive, most brides wore dresses that could be used over and over again.

One ingenious concept which made its appearance toward the end of the 1800's was a gown with alternative bodices — one would be used for the wedding, then put away as a keepsake; the second, less modest in design, would be paired with the skirt of the wedding dress and worn on special occasions.

Practicality, however, was not the sole force that dictated the bride's attire in the 19th century. Traditional superstitions held their own with regard to many aspects of the wedding (including what was worn) as they had for so many centuries.

The old rhyme, "Something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue," was religiously followed by brides in the Victorian era. There was a reason behind each of the elements in the rhyme.

According to "With This Ring" by Elizabeth Laverack, the "something old", usually lace handed down from generation to generation, was included in the bride's attire so that she would still be able to count on the love and affection that were hers prior to her marriage.

The "something new", almost always the wedding gown, which would have been left incomplete by a few stitches until it was actually donned by the bride on the day of her wedding, boded success in her new, wedded state.

"Something borrowed," frequently the veil or a garter (it was considered lucky for an unmarried friend to lend the bride a garter) was included so that the bride's friends should continue to be of assistance when called upon. And the "something blue", usually ribbon or trimming on the bride's underwear, was a symbol of loyalty.

The last thing the Victorian bride would don when preparing her wedding toilette would be her gloves. As she did so, she would turn away from her mirror since it was considered inauspicious for the bride to regard her completely dressed reflection before the ceremony.

And it was unheard of that the bridegroom see his bride in her wedding regalia until they met at the altar, lest there BE no wedding.

How times have changed! Today the bridegroom takes more interest in his wedding, this old superstition having given way to a more practical attitude. And often, he even helps his fiancée shop for her gown so that it will be something he approves of and likes. And, too, the bridal portrait is sometimes taken ahead of time with BOTH participants included since today's marrying couples seem to prefer a formal pose of both the bride and bridegroom, — togetherness being the important element of the ceremony which will begin their life together.

The old-fashioned, tradition-riddled ceremonies of yore are on the return despite the fact they did that about-face for awhile in the 70's. And when polled as to the type of weddings now "in", bridal consultants replied that "old was new". Even the exchange of rings and vows has made the circle back to the "thee" and "thou" vernacular.

And, contrary to the attitudes of those who scoff at marriage and only want to "live together", sans the rites and certificate, we, surprisingly are handing and mailing our as many bridal questionnaires as ever.

THE BOTTOM LINE: The bonds of matrimony lose their value unless the interest is kept up.

R. Richardson, J. Heath marry; honeymoon in Ft. Lauderdale

A week-long honeymoon at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. followed the recent spring marriage of Jo Ann Heath, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Heath of 7872 Kirkridge Park Dr., Belleville, and Ronald Lee Richardson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford D. Richardson.

Mount Hope Lutheran Church in Allen Park was the setting for the six o'clock rite performed in candlelight before some 100 guests.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride appeared in an ivory satin gown designed with a sweetheart neckline, long sleeves enhanced with embroidered Alencon lace and a chapel train. Her veil of silk illusion drifted to mid-calf length from a little pearl-trimmed lace Juliet cap. A bouquet of silk ivory, burgundy and pink roses interspersed with baby's breath completed her bridal finery.

Christina D. Waddell of Belleville served as honor attendant in a rose-colored gown fashioned with a cotton crocheted bodice, slit sleeves and crystal pleated skirt.

She carried a single burgundy satin rose accented with baby's breath and greenery and tucked sprigs of baby's breath in her hair.

Bridesmaids in identical wine-colored ensembles included Eileen Sefcovic of New York and Trudy Heath of Ypsilanti, sisters of the bride; Amy Missant and Joy Anguilm of Belleville and Geraldine Karas of Wyandotte.

Youngsters in the bridal coterie were 10-year-old Sharon Richardson, the bridegroom's niece, who was flower girl, and a nephew, 2-year-old Joel Richardson.

Sharon donned a pink satin frock trimmed with ivory lace and carried pink and burgundy silk daisies.

Timothy Mc Namara of Taylor was asked to be best man. Groomsmen were Bruce Gomez and Frank Garcia, both of Southgate; Frank Litinski of Taylor; Alan Richardson of Southgate, the bridegroom's brother; Ed Karas of Wyandotte; Mike De Sana of Southgate and Rocky Gray of Taylor.

A cake and punch reception followed in the church parlor.

On their return from Florida the newlyweds took up residence at 13300 Village Park Dr., Apt. 1084, Southgate.

A Belleville High School graduate, the new Mrs. Richardson is employed in Belleville at John Sexton and Co. Her husband graduated from Schaefer High School in Southgate and is now with Wyandotte Cement.

The rehearsal dinner, hosted by the bridegroom's parents, was held at Mama Mia Pizzeria in Allen Park.

Jennifer Szweda 32nd to wear heirloom gown

When Jennifer Helen Szweda received the sacrament of baptism Sunday, June 14, she was the 32nd in a line of relatives to wear a very special dress for a church ceremony.

Made from the bridal gown which her great-grandmother, Mrs. Louis (Caroline) Faryniarz, had fashioned for her 1913 wedding, the dress was initially worn by the Faryniarz's first child on his christening day. Fashioned in the traditionally long style, the ivory creation is made of intricate point-scalloped re-embroidered lace. The long satin streamers which accent the bodice (blue for the boys, pink for girls) are changed for each wearer and then kept as a memento as the dress is stored away for future use.

Following that first ceremony, the Faryniarz's next nine children and subsequently their 10 grandchildren were attired in the same dress.

The fourth generation of the Detroit-area Polish family has since been clad in the family heirloom with Jennifer (then 2-weeks-old) the 12th to be added to that particular list.

The oldest child to have worn the gown is now 65-years-old and others garbed in the same dress in that generation are in their 50's. Ages of the grandchildren range from 38 down to 18.

Jennifer's father, Leonard Szweda, his three brothers and one sister; three in the Faryniarz family, two in the Kelly clan and one in the Gladowski family have worn the dress. Two of the Lerins, three more Faryniarza and one Cheluka also have been added to the roster.

Born May 30 to Leonard and Antoinette Szweda of 9566 Hamilton St., Belleville, (the family members who live farthest west of Detroit), Jennifer was baptized at St. Anthony's Catholic Church by The Rev. Raymond S. Skonec. Her God-parents, Maureen Cheluka of Trenton and James Schimelfening of Detroit, were among the 25 relatives who attended an open house at the Szweda's following the afternoon rite.

On hand to witness their sister's ceremony in the christening gown they had previously worn were 12-year-old Barbara and 6-year-old Christopher. And someday, their own offspring will be carried off to church in the lovely, old dress which their great-great grandmother had been wise enough and talented enough to leave as a legacy for her heirs.

MR. AND MRS. RONALD L. RICHARDSON

Carrying on a family tradition

Little Jennifer Helen Szweda, who made her debut May 30, poses with her mother, Mrs. Leonard (Antoinette) Szweda of Belleville, in the traditionally long christening gown which bears a family tale. Made from the baby's great-grandmother's lace wedding dress, the creation has been worn by four generations of the family, Jennifer being the 32nd to wear it in a church ceremony.

Next year's reunion will be held at the home of the Glen Cullins in Litchfield, Ohio.

City Championship Golf dates set

1981 competitions to be held at Fellows Creek

Nobody, but nobody looks forward to the City Championship Golf Tournament than perennial tournament manager Bill Hawley.

And, after last year's torrential rains had everybody wondering "if it's worth it", Hawley reminds area golfers that "this once a year classic is what golfing is all about."

"It may have been a year ago when our tournament was postponed and played on consecutive Saturdays instead of over one weekend because of the rains, but I'll bet no one who competed in that tournament has ever forgotten it or enjoyed it more than the previous ones."

"Golfers love obstacles — that's what the game is all about," Hawley added. "And I'll betcha that before you're finished quoting me there will be people asking when this tournament will be played this year."

Bets are off, Mr. Hawley.

Preps pay and play

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

Caught in the economic squeeze, Belleville High athletic boosters are proposing a unique policy in order to assure that there will be a varsity season in the fall.

Boosters recently approached the Van Buren Board of Education and urged trustees to adopt a "pay and play" attitude toward high school sports. The philosophy is a simple one: If you want your kid to compete in sports, then you, the parent, will have to pay the price.

Members of the Tiger Booster Athletic Club figure that if parents with one child participating in athletics fork over $100, and if they (the boosters) hustle up a few fund-raising events, then the school will be able to pile up enough dough to cover expenditures for sports.

It seems logical that if you want your kid to compete, you'd come up with the money in order for him to do just that. It appears to be one of the many ways to solve the cash shortage that school district is presently suffering.

The voters in that district have on two separate occasions turned down additional millage levies urged of them by the board of education. The board said it had no alternative but to cut personnel and programs.

The first and logical program to be cut is, of course, competitive sports. Yet if the Board and the Boosters accept this unprecedented — and it is unprecedented practice of parents paying directly for their child's participation in competitive sports, they will open up a Pandora's Box. Some parents just don't have the money.

Al Wilkerson, head basketball coach at Romulus High School put it this way:

"We're asking parents to make a crucial decision — eat or let their child play sports. There are some people, believe it or not, who have to count each and every penny they have. I don't believe we should ask them to sacrifice their food in order for this kids to compete in sports."

When it comes to tanks and butter, or to food and football, I hope the Boards of Education that have to make the decision select food.

And I hope that the Van Buren Board of Education and the Tiger Booster Club find an alternative way to raise money to save the 1981-82 season at Belleville.

Remember torrential golf tourney?

The unstoppable flow of queries about the 1981 Parks and Recreation-Associated Newspapers' annual golf tournament should stop now that all of the information can be found on these pages.

But there is that perennial malaise of some of our area golfers to wait until the last tick of the clock — the 24th hour to enter this tournament.

A word to the wise — don't. If in the past the recreation and our sports staff have been able to accommodate golfers at the last second, we won't be able to do it this year.

Therefore, please get those entries in early so that we can funnel them to Bill Hawley, the tournament manager. This tournament, as those who have played in it know, is an excellent one. It draws some of the finest amateur golfers in the county as well as those who just get out there on the course for the fun of competition.

We would like to accommodate everyone. But when the field gets over the century mark, it becomes extremely difficult, believe me.

Now that we have imparted that information, if anyone sees Tom Piscopink in these parts would you remind him about the bit of knowledge — Piscopink is notorious for submitting last second entry blanks, then coming out to the course and burning up the field.

Piscopink has dominated this tournament for the past five years, but last year had to withdraw because of the delay caused by torrential rains.

The defending champ? Do you know we can't find that anywhere in our morgue — someone bought out every single paper the day the results were published.

I wonder who?

Belleville to host men's net tourney

Buren Township to compete.

Entry blanks are available at the Van Buren Township Parks and Recreation Department located at 46425 Tyler Road.

Additional information can be obtained by contacting the tournament director, Roger Suter, at 697-1361.

Last year approximately 125 amateur golfers took part — this year an identical number is expected to compete.

The tournament is open to amateur male golfers who reside or work in the cities of Westland, Wayne, Canton, Inkster and Garden City. Separate city championships will be held simultaneously for all five communities with each golfer playing 18 holes on the first day and 18 on the second or final day.

Trophies will be awarded to first, second and third place finishers in each flight and there will be an additional trophy presented to the individual with the low score of the entire field (medalist).

In case of a tie for a trophy, a sudden death playoff will be waged to determine the winner.

And additional flight competitions will be held for each city if total entry is sufficient.

The tournament also is being conducted to find the low five scorers from each city who will be eligible to play on the city team in the state parks and recreation golf championship. All other golfers will become alternates in order of their finish.

Although non-resident may compete in this tournament, only bona fide residents may represent a city on the team in the state tournament.

In order to enter, please fill out the registration blank accompanying this story. There is a $22 entry fee which covers the cost of green's fee and trophies.

Please make checks payable to Bill Hawley, tournament manager. Mail your check and the entry blank to Associated Newspapers, Sports Desk, 35540 Michigan Ave., Wayne, Michigan, 48184.

Entries will also be accepted at City Recreation Offices or at the Wayne Eagle.

Defense wins for Mr. Steak

It took nine innings but Mr. Steak managed to get around a tough Greg's Emergency and some defensive heroics provided by Kathy Podgorny to win a close 3-2 decision in the Wayne Recreation Class A women's softball league.

The losers grabbed a 2-0 first inning lead, but Mr. Steak came back and tied it in the bottom of the second. From thereon it was a pitchers' duel between loser Kim Storace and winner Suzanne Riggs who helped her cause with a pair of hits and an RBI.

Riggs's teammate Kelly Reinske supplied the winning base hit.

Podgorny, who made nine unassisted putouts, knocked in a run with a single and April Wilson also accounted for a run-scoring hit.

In other Class A action, pitcher Renee Burnee gave up seven hits en route to a 9-0 shutout of J & D. Pacing the winner at the plate were Kim Schwartz who singled and tripled off of loser Pat Bledsoe who also gave up a pair of hits to Lori Newmann, Wendy Reynolds blasted a two-run triple for the winners.

Burnie almost lost her shutout when Lou Hoeft led off the third with a three-bagger but was left on base.

In the only other "A" confrontation, Tasee Freez rattled J & D Auto 5-1 behind Burnie's 7-hitter. Burnie served up a pair of singles to Cindi Stapleton who knocked in the loser's lone run. Loser Ann Knight was tagged for seven hits, three of those to Wendy Reynolds who collected a triple, a pair of singles and two RBIs.

In the meantime, over in Class B, Wayne Bank held off a rallying Feal

Electric club 4-3 as winning pitcher Mary Baryo scattered nine hits to post the victory. Dorren Coplin was charged with the loss. She was tagged for six hits. Teammate Colleen Gigs knocked out two singles and drove in a run.

Scoring four times in the fourth inning, Tom's Second Street broke open a close game and went on to post a 5-0 victory. The two teams played near perfect defense. Kathy Peterson picked up a pair of singles off of winner Linda Rufing who yielded nine, while Donna Goodrick latched on to a triple and two singles off of Peterson, who was the loser.

Hornets runnerup

The Westland Youth Soccer League came within one victory of boasting a state champion in its midst.

The Hornets, the league champs in the girls' under 14 category, reached the state finals last week at Warren and lost a 4-2 category, reached the state finals last week at Warren and lost a 4-2 decision to Troy and the state title.

Julie Hysko scored both of the Hornets' goals, but it wasn't enough to stop a well-coached Troy club which walked off with the coveted "McGuire Cup".

The Hornets wrapped up the season with a 12-1-1 record, plus the league and Western Division title. In a span of three years this team has amassed an enviable 29-6-4 non-lost-record.

The Hornets have beaten the Northville Foxes (4-2), Farmington Goldiggers (5-2), Farmington Celtics (5-1), Northville Foxes (4-2), Troy Buckeyes (1-0), Northville Charlies Angels (4-0), Farmington Goldiggers (3-1), Warren Chargees (2-1), Farmington Celtics (3-0), Plymouth Chargers (6-1), Northville Cougars (5-0).

The local kickers lost to Troy BESL Avengers, 4-2, in the state finals then beat the Northville Pink Panthers 5-1 to wrap up the season. The Northville Charlie Angels tied the Hornets 1-1 in their only other game.

Launching pad

Van Buren Township trustee Fred Domen lays into a drive during last week's Belleville Kiwanis-Rotary Golf Outing. A number of local community and business leaders participated in the event at the Washtenaw Country Club in Ypsilanti.

Romulus cagers win East Grand Rapids summer tourney title

If the East Grand Rapids Summer Basketball Tournament is any indication of the caliber of play awaiting Romulus High fans this winter, then the Eagles will have something to rejoice about this season.

Coach Al Wilkerson's cagers battled through three veteran-packed teams to capture the first place trophy over the weekend in Grand Rapids.

"These summer games are important to us," Wilkerson said. "They're setting the foundation for winter. I believe we will have an excellent team this season. I can see it in these kids now."

A field of seven teams gathered for the early summer classic with Lansing Eastern, Mt. Pleasant, Muskegon Heights, St. Joseph, East Grand Rapids, Allegan and Romulus accepting the invitation to play.

The Eagles drew Allegan in the first round and, with Troy Gray pumping in 21 points and guard Bobby Stewart adding 17, Romulus emerged with a 64-54 victory.

In the semi-finals, Wilkerson's cagers ran up against a Mt. Pleasant team that finished second in the state a year ago in Class B. And with the state runners-up, loaded with five starters off that team, matched baskets evenly until Gray's at-the-buzzer 16-foot jumper found its mark and cut a 62-all knot to give Romulus a vital 64-62 triumph.

"It was an excellently played game," Wilkerson related. "We had a 10-point edge on them until their all-stater (Mark Anderson) sparked a comeback."

Anderson finished the game with 25 points, the individual high scorer, but Gray had 22 points, counting the game-winner. He also connected on 11 of 13 shots from the field.

Romulus advanced to the finals where they found St. Joe's awaiting them. The Eagles buried their foes 78-54 behind Gray's 18 points, Kevin Baker's 16 and 6-5½ pivotman Bill McNeil's exceptional all-around performance.

Nashville-bound

J & D Auto will head for Nashville, Tenn. to compete in the USSSA World Tournament in August after qualifying for the prestigious championships during competitions staged in Rochester. The local softballers, under the guidance of manager Sue Tapp and Coach Janie Graham, swept four games in the qualifying rounds by beating Macomb All-Sports, 5-1; Garden City All-Stars, 3-2, Redford's Cooper, 4-1, and downed the Redford club again in the finals 7-5 to win the tournament crown. Terri Chapo, Tina Russell, Cindy Williams and Kim Cesarz were dominate figures in the J & D tournament victory. "I would like to say that although all the girls played well, there was no single player who carried the team," said Coach Tapp. "The championship was definitely a team victory."

Triple play jolts Morgan's

Progressive Club wins thriller, 5-4

Progressive Club pulled off a triple play to climax its narrow 5-4 victory over Morgan Collision last week in the Romulus Recreation Class A women's softball league.

Morgan's threatened in the fourth inning but winning pitcher Annie Hady-niak got out of the inning thanks to a superb defensive maneuver by leftfielder Cheri Hady-niak who caught a fly-ball, fired the ball to the plate in time for catcher Lori Gradziak to make the second out.

Then, Gradziak rocketed the ball to third baseman Denise Quiring who tagged a fleeing Morgan player for the third putout of the inning, completing the rare triple play.

The victory, Progressive's seventh in 12 outings, helped them close the gap on league-leading Puffer Red Record who's atop of the standings with a 10-2 record.

Puffer's, however, had little trouble stopping Little Caesar's, beating the fourth-place team 13-5, while the co-owners of last place, Suburban Oil, picked up their third win of the campaign, 2-0, at the expense of third place Total Petroleum.

In the meantime, Captain Nemom's tightened its grip on the Men's Class A lead with an impressive 13-4 victory over Atchinson Ford. Nemom's record stands at 11-1 on the season, while Bates & Sons turned back Savage Hitch 16-10, for its ninth win in 12 starts to remain in second.

Don McMann had an excellent night at the plate for the winners as he drilled three hits and scored what proved to be the go-ahead run.

Mike Lamkowski hammered a pair of homers as Romulus Tire rolled over Tom's Tavern 9-2 for its seventh triumph against five losses for the year.

Over in Class B, F.X. Coughlin maintained its slim lead over Jac's Lounge thanks to its 5-1 record. Jac's won a shortened-by 'mercy rule' victory over Dobb's House, which tumbled 23-5 to the runner-up team.

Airtrans stayed within title reach as Adrienne King laced a triple to score the winning runs in a 7-4 victory over fourth place Shirley's Gulf.

Drysdale Pallets moved to the top of the standings in men's Class B action as it edged Walter's Bar 12-10 on the home run strength provided by Dave Eves. The league-leaders, 8-2 on the season, are a half-game up on second place Michigan Bell which escaped from upset-minded Crova/Bailey in a cliffhanger. Demara scored what proved to be the winning run in an 8-7 victory.

In other Class B action, VFW chalked up its seventh win against four losses, turning back Johnny's Party Store, 13-7 while Mike Bratcher and Bob Phillips each went 3 for 4 at the plate. Bratcher belted a homer for the victors.

In another thriller, Double Eagle nipped Speedy Printing, 8-7, for its fifth win.

Over in the Men's Open B League, Dannon Yogurt crushed the Bullets 11-4 as Hondo and Kurt each homered for the winners. Federal Mogul was awarded a forfeit when the Environ didn't show for their scheduled game, while Preventive Maintenance crushed Drake's Lounge 17-4 with Paul Debuyscher collecting four hits in five trips to the plate.

Bud's Rent-It and Bilmar's were locked in a slugfest and when all the swinging was over Bud's enjoyed a 13-12 victory.

They're softball champs

up with a 17-3 over-all record and senior co-captains Debbie Benko (shortstop), Nancy Hochkins (pitcher), and Shelly Wilson (first baseman) were named to the all-conference team. This year's championship was the third since the Spartans began girls' softball competition in 1975. Debbie Benko also was picked as "Girl Athlete of the Year" at Cherry Hill High school and received an athletic scholarship to Henry Ford Community college.

Brewers capture Romulus South baseball title

Champs post perfect 9-0 record

The Major League ball players may be on strike, but there's still a lot of action in the Romulus South Senior Little League.

Manager Barry Baumann's Brewers turned in an exceptional performance this week to beat the Mets 8-4 for their ninth consecutive victory and captured their second straight baseball championship.

Capturing their second straight league championship, the Brewers racked up their 23rd consecutive win to down the Mets, giving them a 9-0 season.

Kevin Hess and Bill Thomas provided the offensive punch, while Chris Marsiglia and Hess combined their pitching talents.

Last Saturday's contest matched the two rivals, and both played topsy-turvy ball until the sixth inning when the Brewers scored four times to sew up the win.

Keith McDiamad and Joe Atherton collected the only Mets hits.

Losing pitcher Mike Panek gave up six hits. The loss ended a modest six-game win streak for the Mets, who, like the Brewers, chalked up two victories earlier in the week.

In other games, the Phillies downed the Cardinals 14-4 for their 3rd win of the season, before meeting the Brewers in a 13-4 loss.

Last call for netmen

This is the final call for tennis players in the Belleville-Van Buren area.

The Belleville Jaycees is sponsoring a 4th of July weekend tournament designed for men, and entry regulations stipulate that the player must reside in Belleville or Van Buren.

Additional information can be obtained by telephoning tourney director, Roger Suter, at 697-1361.

Entry blanks are available at the Van Buren Parks and Recreation Department, 45425 Tyler Road.

With the results in the league this week, Baumann becomes the All-Star manager for the 14 & 15 year olds, while Mets manager Charles Wilcox will take the 13 year olds into tournament competition, which begins July 15.

Supervisor Cullin asked if anyone in the audience wished to speak in opposition to the 'Special Approval'. Dave Wertz asked how often these establishments were inspected as he was concerned about the welfare of the animals.

Supervisor Cullin stated that we do not inspect on any periodic basis but if problems arise we receive phone calls and inspect at that time. The Townships Dog Pound is periodically inspected by the County.

It was then asked if anyone wished to speak on behalf of the special approval. No one arose to speak. Supervisor Cullin stated that Building Department Head Stan Price had written a letter recommending the approval.

Seeing no others wishing to speak, the public hearing was closed.

SELLING VS. SELLING!

The case before the court is:

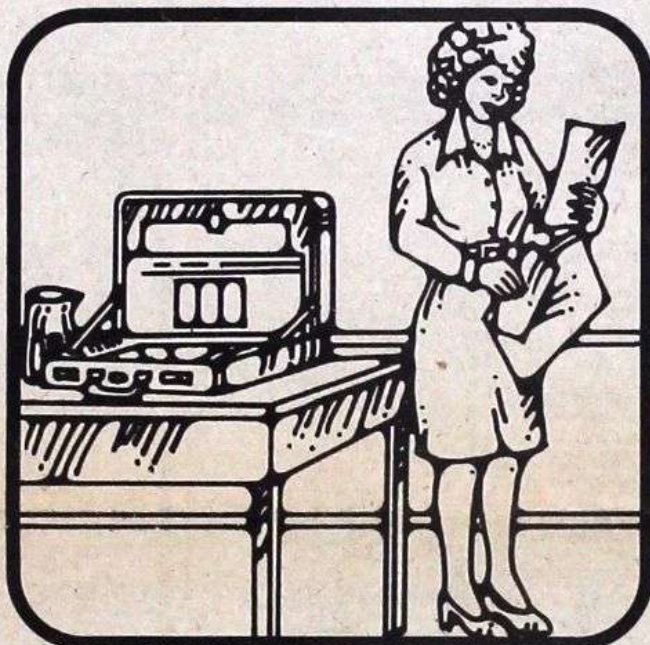

Whether or not it is a crime to slash an advertising budget during an economic downturn.

NO

Attorney for the advertiser points to the potential injury to the bottom line as a clear-cut motive to reduce ad expenditures. He reasons that budgets must always relate to sales and pleads self defense rather than temporary insanity for using the knife.

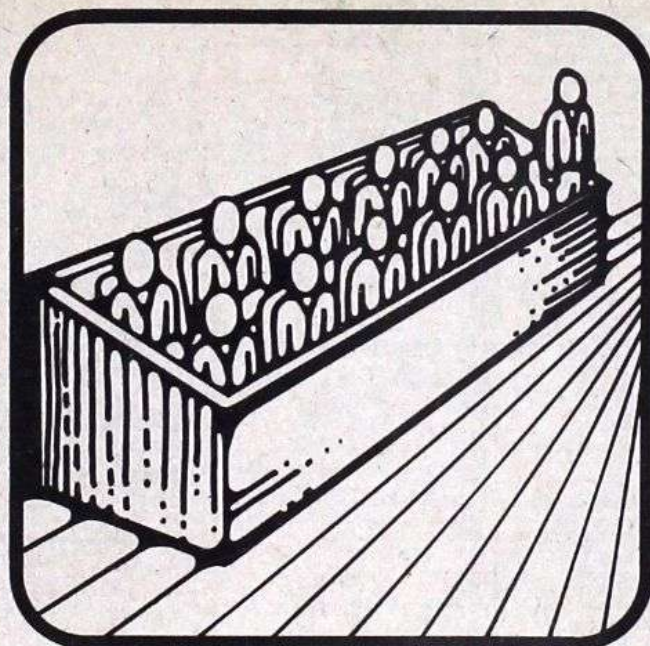

YES

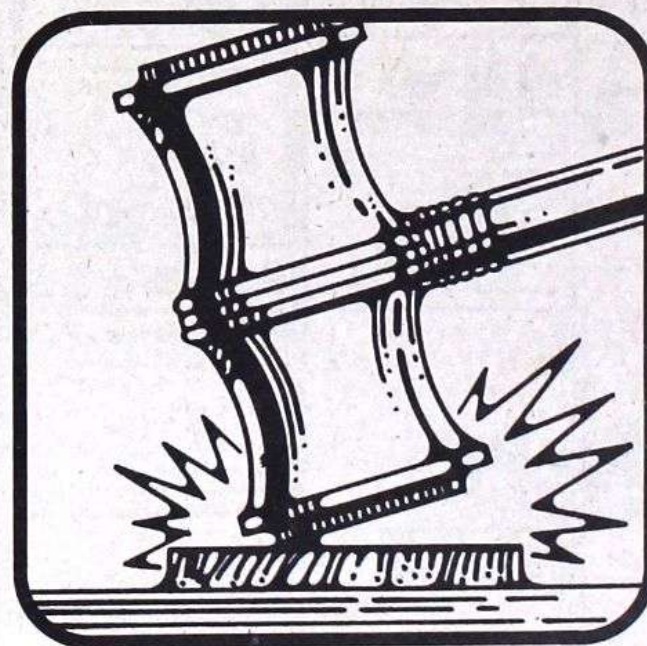

Defense attorney cites previous case of ad slashing and offers as exhibits A,B,C,D post mortems of retailers who lost their confidence in their ability to motivate consumers and move merchandise.

YES

In charging the jury, the judge states that they must decide whether advertising budget-makers should cut and run from recession talk or attack the problem with more selling...more advertising.

THE VERDICT IS CLEAR!
ADVERTISE!...
It doesn't cost...it pays!
